By relieving hard-pressed Secretary of Agriculture Wickard of his food administrator tasks and appointing Mr. Davis as sole food czar, President Roosevelt had created a new threeway agency, combining the Food way agency, combining the Food Production administration, the Food Distribution administration and the Farm Labor administration.

Closer working agreements be-tween congress and the food admin-istration and a minimum of official friction in dealing with war-created friction in dealing with war-created to refarm problems were expected to re-sult under Davis' administration. Observers agreed that Davis had one of the toughest jobs in history, but they were betting he would win.

Praising the rural areas of the United States for having in many instances exceeded their quotas in contributing doctors to the nation's armed forces, the American Medical association declared that enrollments of medical officers in the army and navy are lagging because of the failure of young available physicians in large cities to volunteer for duty. This situation is particularly prevalent along the Eastern seaboard, the association's official magazine charged.

The fact that the armed services are not getting all the doctors they need was disclosed at a recent meeting with military authorities in Washington, the Journal of the American Medical Association said. The conference revealed that 6,000 doctors must be drawn from the civilian population this year.

Little Evidence Seen of Farm Land Speculation

Rural America Seen as Bulwark Against Post-War Depression; 'Nervous Gentlemen' Admit Possibilities of Speculative Wave.

By BAUKHAGE

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

If you see a cheerful glow along the herizon of rural America these evenings, you'll know what it is—not a prairie fire or the neighbor's barn, but the happy light of burning more The farmers of America have had their lesson. They aren't throwing their money around this time. They are paying their debts. They are becoming the solid citizens of the nation. They are building a bulwark against a post-war depression that can save the nation financially, unless.

Right now, the financial health of rural America is better than it has been in many a long decade. But certain nervous gentlemen are be-ginning to worry. Will the farmer keep to the straight and narrow or will he be tempted to put down an option on distant hills which are beginning to turn an alluring green? Listen to what one of those cau-

Listen to what one of those cau-tious gentlemen in Washington, Frank Wilson of the department of commerce, has to say. Why, you may ask, does the department of commerce, whose job it is to look after the welfare of the city man, worry about the farmer? Well, when the farmer goes broke, the city man closes up shop. But, a word from Mr. Wilson: Mr. Wilson:

"While the level of farm values throughout most parts of the Middle West has increased 10 to 15 per cent West has increased 10 to 15 per cent in the last year, and the transfer of farm properties has been greatly accelerated, there is, as yet, no evidence of the recurrence of the destructive speculation in farm lands which followed the First World war."

So far so good. But here is Mr. Wilson's postscript:

"Farm lending authorities through."

Wilson's postscript:

"Farm lending authorities throughout that area, however, admit that conditions are in the making from which a speculative wave might result unless price control measures can be effective in holding farm prices at or only moderately above present levels."

Mortgage Survey

The department of commerce made a survey of the farm mortgage situation in 19 states where the bulk of the food production for war is being made being made

The federal land banks and the Farm Credit administration which has been watching this situation like a hawk has plenty of data. One out of every ten—or more than 100,000—farmer-borrowers from the 12 federal land banks and land bank commissioner repaid his loan in full in 1942.

In the 19 states the department of commerce studied, according to the 1940 census, there were more than three million farms, more than half of all the farms in the country. Their total value is well over half the total value of farm lands in the country.

value of farm lands in the country.

The survey of this territory, just made public, shows that in 1940, '41 and '42, indebtedness of farmers to the Farm Credit administration dropped a quarter of a billion dollars. This includes the drouth area in Kansas, one of the states hit hardest by the drouth, 10,000 farmers got out of debt and Kansas borrowers kept right on paying until they had deposited a million dollars in the "future payment fund" to anticipate labor installments. Similar statistics could be reeled off for other areas. One thing that has helped the debt payment is the inability to get into further debt—for automobiles and other commodities which just aren't for sale.

Will that memory fade? Will the

for sale.
Will that memory fade? Will the farmer's money begin to burn a hole in his pocket? Will those green pas-tures just over the hill begin to lure him beyond his means?

As I said, the cautious folk in Washington are a little worried. These are some of the danger signals they see:
A possible rise in values which

A possible rise in values which cannot be exactly predicted or explained. But which is always a possibility, if not now, after the war. Then there will be an accumulation of cash; there will be a lot of war bonds in the safe deposit box or in the old sock. There will be a lot of bushy young sons returning from the albility, if not now, after the war. Then there will be an accumulation of cash; there will be a lot of war bonds in the safe deposit box or in the old sock. There will be a lot of husky young sons returning from the war for whom fathers will want to buy farms, there will be perhaps an increased demand for farm products.

Kept him far enough away from the table to save his bulging nose from reaching the soup I could hear him inhaling. His hands bulged like the padded arms of an overstuffed chair in a hotel lebby. His cheeks were buy farms, there will be perhaps an increased demand for farm products.

Washington is learning new lessons in human geometry.

as new foreign markets are opened or the United States begins to help feed a starving world.

In some places, there is evidence of the tendency toward speculation now. Lenders in Iowa are offering money against Iowa farm land as Iowa a 2½ per cent. Speculation in livestock is going on in some places. But there is no trend now toward the wild buying of World War I.

"And," says Mr. Wilson, "if the tremendous gains in the farm bidebtedness situation can be held, the capacity of the great agricultural areas of the nation to absorb the flood of products that will come to all markets after the war will be tremendous."

The financial fate of post-war America is pretty much in the hands of the farmers. Let's hope he won't let it (and his spare cash) slip through his fingers.

Two-Way Attack On 'Beveridge Plan'

When the administration's "Beveridge plan" for increased social security and post-war adjustment was made public, congress proceeded to make it plain that they intended to pigeon-hole it. The general impression was that it was laid away because it was too "socialistic" to suit the right wingers of even some of the right wingers or even some of the middle-of-the-roaders.

But do not think that all the opposition came from one direction. The first adventure of the new social position came from one direction. The first adventure of the new social security program was, in reality, very much like the "Charge of the Light Brigade" for there were "cannons to right of them" and also "cannons to left of them" which volleyed and thundered. As I said, the offensive from the right was taken for granted. But the attack of the left wing, while not as vocal, seems to be just as vehement. There is proof in a press release which probably was released by very few papers. It comes from the "People's Lobby" in Washington, an institution which believes in "public ownership of natural resources, basic industries and essential processing and distributive agencies."

But the "People's Lobby" thinks

But the "People's Lobby" thinks the President's plan is nowhere near the Fresident's plan is nowhere hear socialistic enough. In fact, it is just "another trick . . . to try to full the people into a sense of false security while economic royalists continue, through ownership, to dictate the standards of living of the American people."

Washington-Geometric City

The other day, I heard on a radio broadcast the statement that Washington was a geometric city. We have so many squares and circles and other geometric figures—Dupont circle that I pass every day, Lafayette square with its historic memories (not to mention its squirrels) ette square with its historic memories (not to mention its squirrels) where I spend my extra seconds; the Octagon house, built by a wealthy friend of George Washington, where society was lavishly entertained in the early 1800s, now preserved by the American Institute of Architects which bought it to preserve its state. which bought it to preserve its state-ly beauty as well as to house their offices; the sprawling Pentagon building of the army, "a city with a roof over it."

With this in mind, I was suddenly with the new patterns impressed with the new patterns imposed on Washington since the war. posed on washington since the war, the human figures, two of which I watched over my lunch in a restau-rant the other day. At the next table were, not circles nor squares but human loops and bulges.

One was a slim man in eyeglasses. His nose was a loop, his smooth hair was looped back over his forehead. His gestures were looped, the back of the wrist bent and higher than his fingertips as he dangled his ciga-rette—I could only think of the paws of a lackadaisical pup begging for

His partner was Mr. Bulge. The bulge began below the wrinkle in his vest and it was the only thing that

ON THE

IT ALL started with a bright idea I for making a simple, painted coffee table from odds and ends. The sketch at the lower left gives the dimensions and shows the simple construction. Two end sec-tions were made first; the top and sides of these being fastened to-gether with metal angles, as illustrated. A shelf was then nailed in and a ½ by 3-inch board nailed across the back of it. Two boards for the top of the table were then acrewed to the end sections.

So far the table was substantial So far the table was substantial but crude and that is where the lady with the needle came in. The table was to be painted putty color and then waxed. She bought a yard of slightly darker tan eastern and the standard of slightly darker tan eastern and appliqued a design of bright blue and red marning glories and green laware on it with sterns and tendrils in green matting stitute. This was placed over the table top and tacked around the edge. A piece of glass was then cut to fit and ½ by 3-inch pieces were screwed to the sides flush with the top of glass.

NOTE—Mrs. Spears has prepared a sheet—17 by 22 inches—giving complete dimensions and directions for making this table. Even the gal who is just learning to do small chores with hammer, saw and screw driver can follow these simple, clear directions. To get a copy ask for Design 254, address:

PARTY LINE BRINGS

JASPER, MO. — The party line, oft-styled rural newspaper, proved a boon to Mrs. Charles Thomas, shown above, a farm woman near here, when her husband suffered a serious accident which left herfacing the huge task of doing all their farm work, including a big dairy herd to milk. A one-unit Surge milker was in the barn but Mrs. Thomas didn't know how to use it. She remembered a neighbor down the road who had a milker of the same type, so using her partyline telephone she called for help. Within 30 minutes, to her amazement, a half dozen neighbors with eleven milkers arrived to handle this phase of her work, proving again the "Good Neighbor" policy works at home as well as abroad and that the party-line is really more than just a telephone service.

Doc Joe pulled up the chair close the bed and spoke softly, throt-ing his voice down to a near-whis-

"For one thing, I ain't dead now, never was and don't intend to be for a spell yet," he said. "Get that in your head, Cal. Don't go thinking shosts."

"You don't look anything like what I might suppose a ghost would look," Cal said curtly, "Now, let's get after this: What in the name of blazes you been playing dead for?"

They thought I was dead.

Me, I got to thinking. I let 'em keep on thinking so. Nobody knows but Doc Evans; you and him, now, Cal. And you're both going to keep your mouths shut until I give the word."

"Rance Waldron is downstairs right new," said Cal, stubborn and eager. "He killed the Judge, you says. And you saw him? And it's almost a dead certainty that either him or his hired hand, Tom Gough, potted old Early Bill!"

"Shut up and sit down and keep your shirt tail tucked in! Now, listen. The Judge and me, we had those two wills that old jackass Bill Cole drawed up. And Mr. Rance Waldron's got 'em now."

And now Cal Roundtree, telling this to Cole Cody as the two jogged along, came to a halt. Then he began to swear explosively. And in the end, grown quiet after his struggle with himself, he muttered disgustedly.

Fole Cody, hencilcularies under less biguitées al Wills of Oht Hill Cube, sought to discusse in the Cody of the Cast and Reed the Saal Hullet at Old Hill. "But wait!" exclaimed Porfirio excitedly.
"What the deuce is il?" muttered Cody, stooping to see better. "Not a dead cat, is it? Somebedy's old black tom—A hat!"
Cody led the way into the living room; while he was lighting a lamp Porfirio explained how his persiatence had brought him to his discovery. From the place where the man had hidden when he shot Early Bill, Porfirio on horseback had ridden a score of times, following each time a slightly different path, thinking. Now if it was me, and I was riding like the wind, I'd go this way; thinking, And I would get rid of that hat muy pronto. And he had looked at all the possible hiding places, had looked even for signs of a small hot fire. And then at last his keen eyes had seen a stick, a small dead pine limb, its end sticking out from under a sizable boulder! a sizable boulder!

Aha! He had it! For how could a stick get itself shoved under a rock like that? If a man had moved that rock now, and had been in a hurry settling it back, and in a hurry to ride on, he might with a careless boot have kicked that stick where it got caught under the stone! For-fire sweated over the boulder move. firio sweated over the boulder, moving it—and found the hat.

Yes, there was a bullet hole dillied through it. There was more.
There was everything; Cole Cody could only regret that its message gustedly.

"Cody. I don't know which end I'm standing on. There's something I know that I got to keep under my hat, like I been doing; I almost blew my top off and let the cat jump with old Doc Joe; I'm near doing the same thing with you."

"Why not, Cal?" said Cody quietly. "You and I haven't known each other all summer, but—what's on your mind, old timer?"

"No," Cal growled. "Let me be. Let me go on now and tell you the rest that I can; what old Doc Joe has got in his mind. He says Rance Waldron is smart like a whole "Tom Gough, that's who it was Porfirio," he said as he tossed the hat, now of no interest, to the ta-ble. "But Rance Waldron-Look. Porfirio, Tom Gough is dead al-ready. He's the stick-up gent that fought it out with the Judge and Doc

Joe."
Porfirio began cursing softly in the tongue of the south. He started the tongue of the south. He started the tongue of the said good night sulto the door; he said good night sul-lenly—Then of a sudden he whirled and cried out "Dead, the cabrone! And so he gets away from me like that, does he, Don Codito!" He laughed, and it was an evil sound when Pordirio Long, laughed the when Porfirio Lopez laughed that

He says Rance Waldron is smart like a whole herd of foxes; he says, no, Waldron won't destroy those wills right off; he says Waldron will play safe, and hide 'em darn good, where the devil himself can't find 'em, until he sees for sure which way the wind himse. What he says, is this: Waldron will try to gobble the King Cole Ranch and anything else left hanging. If he makes a go of it, here hand have the papers. If there's any slip-up along the trail, well then, with the two wills in his war hag, he can dicker.

After a long while Cody asked, "What does Doe Joe plan? How leng is he going to play dead?"

That started Cal Roundtree off again. But he get himself in hand unimately and explained some part of Doe Joe's plan.

Little by little, out of these drift-ing allences, they fell to taking briefly and sketchilly about each oth-er, about themselves.

They laughed a little together, and came closer each other than ever before, when they started to speak at the same instant and with the same thought:

same thought:

"Why, your father and mine, too, must have been great friends!"

Cody made himself another cigaretic and, instead of smoking it or even remembering that he had made it to smoke, sat rolling and rolling it with his lean, strong fingers. He said without looking up, "I could almost be glad—in a way, I would be glad if it wasn't that Rance Waldron might come to profit by il—that those two wills are, anyhow for the present and maybe for good, out of the picture. All we've done, maybe all we'd ever do, is fight like cat and dog over the darned place! Maybe now—well, fight like cat and dog over the darned place! Maybe now-well, maybe we can get along without fighting! It might be fun for a change, Ann Lee!"

"I'm a beast most of the time, I'm afraid," she said contribly. "And I try so hard not to be! Hon-estly, Bill Cole Cody, I try terribly hard."

He put his hand on hers; she permitted the contact for a long moment, then gently slid her fingers out from under his and, palm upard, let them curl again on her lap.

"I guess I shouldn't have spanked

you—so hard, anyhow!"
"I deserved every bit of it—and harder!" But he saw that the hot color in her cheeks now was not altogether the affair of the fire.

"And I guess I oughtn't to have kissed you on the stage—the way I did!"

"Let's not quarrel any more, ev-er," she said hurriedly. She lifted her eyes to his. "We have been friends, in a way, haven't we? We do like each other, even after all that's happened; I know we do."

He said soberly, "You're being mighty sweet, Ann Lee. I never knew a girl like you!" "I love fireplaces! One like this;

look how the coals are forming now! Do you like to find pictures in them? Of course, everybody does. The fire-place is one of the things that makes me love this room." She stirred alightly and sighed; she moved her arms, crossing them, her hands on her shoulders, giving herself a little hug; she said, "Dear old Early Bill, he did try, didn't he? Tried so hard to 'have him his fun' and at the same time to do something. same time to do something splen-did for you and me, for his old friends' son and daughter. Well, I've a tiny fireplace all my own at home, and when I go back to teach-

"Ann! What are you talking "Ann! What are you talking about? You haven't forgotten, have you, the money he left for us in the bank, fifty-fifty? We know that Bucktooth Jenkins got that ten thousand into the pot; you heard the Judge say there was a whole lot more! And you talking about teaching!"

"Honestly, cross my heart and hope to die," she exclaimed, "I had hope to die, she exclaimed, I had forgotten all about that part of it! Why, there are thousands and thousands there, all yours and mine!"

Aunt Jenifer cleared her throat considerately in the far, dim end of the long room.

considerately in the far, dim end of the long room.

"Mind if I come in, you two?" she asked, and came straight ahead.

And thus began on the King Cole Ranch a short period of time into which entered many a pleasant moment, with moments of quiet peace, moments of spontaneous happiness, flitting all toe swiftly because always the shadow came back, moments when Ann Lee surprised a look in Bill Cole Cody's which be look in full Cole Cody's which he did not know was there, which no other girl had ever put there; and times when he, trying to read what lay in her mind, what she felt deep down in her heart even, dreamed his dreams. his dreams.

They rode together hours on end, memorizing the lovely details of the vast King Cole Ranch. Once Ann Lee, as they came to the crest of a rise of land from which they could look for miles across a glory of memorial collection papersum available of the collection of look for finites across a glory of undulating panorama, exclaimed breathlessiy, "Oh, Cole! If this real-ity could be ours!" And he repeated within himself, not looking at her but into the furthest blue distance, his jaw hard and his eyes narrow

And his thoughts switched swiftly, as so often they did, to the vanished Rance Waldren. For since that night Rance Weldren. For since that night in Baid Engle, more at the ranch-had seen or heard of him. Rance Waldren had simply faded out of the picture, leaving no toking of where he had gone or why or for how long. Christ is God! The one who comes to know that truth is ready to follow Christ, and to make Him known to others. The want of such a true con-ception of the Son of God weakens our convictions and hinders our usefulness.

"Where there is no vision, the people perish," said the wise man (Frov. 29:18). For want of a true vision of Christ as God, and the Godgiven constraint which makes men give themselves in sacrificial service, the people perish in their sins.

Peter and John saw our Lord in His transfiguration, and the glow of that experience lighted their entire life and ministry. The touch of the supernatural was on these men and their message—for they had seen the glory of Christ.

1. The Amasing Glory of the San

I. The Amazing Glory of the Son (Mark 9:2-8).

The transfiguration of Christ is one The transfiguration of Christ is one of those wonderfully beautiful and deeply spiritual experiences which defy analysis or satisfactory description. Poetry and art have vainly tried to depict it only to become "in fact a confession of the importence of the loftiest art to rise to the level of the divine" (Van Dyke). Peter was so dazzled that he could only suggest that they remain there.

only suggest that they remain there, forgetting for the moment that down in the valley was demon-ridden humanity waiting for the divine deliverance of the Son of God (see Luke 9:37-42).

What took place on the mount can possibly best be explained as the outshining of the inner glory of the Christ. He had laid aside His glory when He became flesh, but not His divine attributes as very God. There in the presence of God and the heav-enly visitors that glory shone through His humanity and His ap-pearance became dazzling in its II, The Approving Word of the Father (Mark 9:7, 8).

A cloud, like the cloud which filled the Temple of old (I Kings 8:10,11), covered them, and the Father spoke out of it words of approval of His These words carry "both judg-

These words carry "both judgment and command; judgment concerning Jesus, 'This is my beloved Son,' and command to the disciples, 'Hear ye him'—that is, 'Listen to him' '' (Lesson Commentary.)

John and Peter came to a fuller conviction that He was the Son of God as they saw Him transfigured and heard the words of the Father. They learned more plainly the fact that He was God manifest in the flesh for the redemption of man. They saw in the indescribable beauty of saw in the indescribable beauty of that moment a foregleam of His coming glory. What important truths coming kingdom. Have we learned them as we have beheld His glory?

III. The Assured Faith of the Disciples (II Per. 1:16-18) These words were written by Pe-

These words were written by Peter when he was nearly eighty years of age—about thirty-five years after the transfiguration. John wrote sixty years after the event and said, "We beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father" (John 1:14).

The one who follows these eyewitnesses in believing in Christ may share their assurance expressed by share their assurance expressed by Peter that we do not "follow cunningly devised fables" in making known to the world the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Our faith is built on God's Word, and upon such testimony as this by eyewitnesses. Here is real ground for assured belief in Christ.

Great experiences of spiritual renewing and power lead to effective life and testimony for Christ. They may not be in ediward tions, in fact they are most often in outward manifestathe inner recesses of man's soul; but they do transform men and send them forth to magnificent living for God. One wonders if much of the One wonders if much of the God. One wonders if much of the dearth of power in the Christian Church is not to be attributed directly to the lack of such experiences with God.

The disciples had an unforgettable

The disciples had an unforgettable mountain-top experience. Even so have many others found the secret of power. It came to D. L. Moody as he walked down a New York street, praying in agony, "Deliver me from myseif. Take absolute sway." The story of what happened to him and through him as a surrendered instrument in God's hand is written large on the pages of is written large on the pages of history. Others have had similar experiences.

Let us remember that such privi-leges are not reserved for a few, they are the birthright of every Christian, Power without knowledge is a dangerous and destructive thing, but knowledge without power is a dead thing, resulting in a stale and unifruitful populatory that in turn produces a dreadful and unchristian PRINCIPLE RYSTRIN

Good Morning!

What's your breakfast? A squirt of orange juice and a sip of or fruit, cereal, eggs, toast and coffee? No need to tell you which one you can start a man-sized day's work on, is there? A break-fast should supply almost a third of the day's calories and food value. A slight breakfast will prevent you from waking up fully-and thus starting to realize your full quota starting to realize your full quota of production whether you're on the home or factory front. But, treat the first meal of the day with the same respect you do the other two, and you find yourself refreshed and more than ready to do your job—and do it well.

That Extra Something! ... You can spot it every time

THE Civil Air Patrol has recruited more than a third of the nation's 100,000 civilian pilots to fly for national defense. Coming from every walk of life, they are putting forth an extra something to do their trained part. To them and to you, in its own way, ice-cold Coca-Cola offers something extra, too. More than just quenching thirst it brings refreshment . . . refreshment that goes into energy.

Made with a finished art and with a taste all its own, Coca-Cola has quality that sets it apart. Here is something in refreshment that was, and still is, original. Coca-Cola offers all the difference between something really refreshing and just something to drink. There's no comparison.

Wartime limits the supply of Coca-Cola. Those times not get it, remember: Coke, being first choice, sells out first. Ask for it each time.

Even on the ground, pilots know that your thirst takes wings when you drink ter-cold Coca-Cola. Re-freshment comes to take its place.

The best is always the better buy!

U. S. Food Payments Urged for Poor: Tunisia Trap Closes on Axis Armies As Allied Air Blitz Destroys Ships; Truman Group Eyes Hoarding Charges

(EDITOR S NOTE: When spinleds are expressed in these columns they are those of Soviers Newspaper Union's news analysis and not arrevalably of this newspaper.)

The toll of German prisoners has increased steadily as British and American forces have driven in on Rommel's cornered Axis forces in Tunisia. Typical of the multifude of captives is the above group of German prisoners taken in the British drive north of Gabes.

NORTH AFRICA: Axis Hold Shrinks

Of key importance in heralding the possibility of an earlier-than-expected finish of the Tunisian campaign were reports that the harbor and shipping facilities of Gabes had been left undamaged by the Axis forces in their hasty retreat from Gen. Montsomers's one-laughte Gen. Montgomery's onslaughts.

With Gabes functioning as an Allied supply port, the long overland haul of war materials from Tripoli or Bengazi far down the African coast in Libya could be avoided. Moreover, Allied sea and air power concentrated in Gabes could further haruss the Axis forces.

The all-over battle for North Affice was not yet won, but steadily British armies from the north and south and American armies from the center were tightening the squeeze on the remaining Axis tmone in Tomisis troops in Tunisia.

As Marshal Rommel's forces had made their last desperate effort to beat their last desperate effort to beat their way northward for a junc-tion with Col. Gen. Von Arnim's troops in the Bizerte area, reports indicated that the Axis had flown fresh troops into Tunisia. To re-lieve the pressure on Rommel, Von Arnim's forms. Arnim's forces had staged a brief artism's forces and staged a brief counter - offensive against British farces near Bizerte. Control of the air over North Africa had appeared to be turning overwhelmingly in the Allies' favor, as raids shook the Axis lines and turned Rommel's retreatinto a nightmare.

Meanwhile in answer to reports that Germany had commandeered the Italian feet and all available the Italian feet and all available French merchantmen preparatory to an attempt to evacuate Italo-German armies from Tunisia in an Axis "Dunkirk," the Allies staged an unprecedented raid by 100 Flying Ferrames that amashed the important Axis supply have at Cagliari, facilinia, damaging 25 merchant ships and putting 71 enemy planes sut of commission. Simultaneously, waves of American Billy Mitchell bombers struck at an Axis con-vey in the flicilian narrows, sinking at least three large ships and leav-ing others burning and settling.

POSTWAR PLANS: Poland Speaks Up

With postwar peace plans gaining increased attention in Allied chancellories, the Polish government-inexile served notice that Poles would resist "to the last man" any claims from any quarter aimed at the "sovereignty and integrity of Po-land."

Spokesman for the Poles was Prime Minister Władysław Sikorski, now a resident of London. Target of the statesman's remarks was Russia, since the Soviet government recently announced its intention of retaining the Polish Ukraine and the area bordering on White Russia which was taken from Poland un-der the German-Russian partition of Poland in 1939.

But even as he stoutly proclaimed his doctrines of independence, Sikorski recommended that an Allied air force should go to the Russian front after the fighting in Tunisia is concluded as an expression of United cluded as an expression of United Nations' solidarity. He predicted a third German offensive by the Ger-man armies against Russia.

Army Clarifies Policies Regarding Farm Labor

Military Units May Be Employed on Crops Dur-Ing 'Emergency Situations'; Individual Furloughs Not Contemplated.

By BAUKHAGE

WNU Service, Union Trust Building. One farmer wrote me he'd ruther Washington, D. C. have grasshoppers than city folks on

Washington, D. C.

"Home on a furlough."

I wonder how many of my readers remember that very popular print of two (or maybe more) generations ago. Well, never mind if you don't (though I would appreciate a letter from any who do); "home on a furlough" is going to mean something quite different now.

I remember the original sixtus.

I remember the original picture mly vaguely. I didn't know what only vaguely. I didn't know what the word "furlough" meant. But I know there was a tousie-headed blond boy in the middle of an ad-miring farm family, telling his ad-ventures.

Today, the farm boy with a con-science, and the farm family with a farm, are looking forward to the "furlough" that will bring the boy home for work, not the telling of his tales of adventure.

It isn't going to be quite that way.

The President, when the farm bloc was riding the administration its was rining the administration its hardest last month, went into con-siderable detail as to what was to be done to solve the farm labor question. Since then some concrete steps have been taken but not the ones the farmers, or some of them, would have liked. They would have would have liked. They would have liked their own sons, or their own hands, who enlisted because they simply couldn't stay "out of the show," back doing the old chores they used to do. But this is what the army said:

"The army does not contemplate "The army does not contemplate furloughing individual soldiers to work on farms," the war department announced in a statement clarifying policies and procedures by which soldiers may be used to alleviate the farm labor shortage. the farm labor shortage.

"World War I experience dem-onstrated that such temporary re-leases of individual soldiers were of leases of individual soldiers were of little assistance to the agriculture industry and disrupted the organization and training of the army. If furloughs were granted for this purpose, neither agriculture nor the army could be assured that the soldiers thus furloughed actually would be engaged in agricultural activities.

"Certain emergency situations

"Certain emergency situations may develop in which vital crops may be endangered because of critmay be endangered because of crit-ical shortages in local agricultural labor. In such cases, military units may be employed under command of their own officers to supplement the local farm labor until the crisis

"Troops so employed will be housed and fed by the army and will be subject to military control at all

"Requests for use of military units requests for use of mintary units for emergency farm duty must be transmitted to the war department by the chairman of the War Man-power commission."

Another Loophole

However, there is another loop-hole which all of the farmers or the farm men in service may not know about. A soldier over 38 years of age who is on active duty in the continental United States can get his discharge right now if he can get a statement from his local farm agent to the effect that he is needed.

But the application has to get in by May 1. The same thing applies to men overseas and they have until

June. (Better tell them by V-Mail.)

The President explained to us twice, why a batch of young men couldn't be pulled out of a division and sent home.

You can take 10 or 20 soldiers out of an outfit that has just started training and it doesn't make much difference. But you can't take that many men out of an outfit already trained and booked for overseas. Not without crippling the outfit so badly that it really interferes with battle

That's his explanation and he made it to us the other day, leaning back in his chair and obviously try-ing hard to get over an idea that he believes is right.

England's Method

The President said to us that i England they have increased food production 60 per cent. And they did it with the help of a land army, mostly women with no previ-training. They got the training. lot depends on the training.

training. They gover training. It takes with a farmer near here who took on a city boy, green as grass. The boy probably thought shorts were something you wore and probably would have looked in the toolbox for a boar.

Maybe you heard him talk on the and probably would have locked in the toolbox for a boar.

Maybe you heard him talk on the Farm and Home Hour. Well, I met him and the farmer, too. The kid is crazy to get back this summer and the farmer told me he was sick when he had to let him go back to school. City folks are dumb in a lot of ways. But so are farmers. It's true you can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink. Also, a lot of horses have got the sense to drink if you've got sense to lead them to the water.

In spite of dumb help or none at all, in spite of lack of machines and a lot of red tape, the farmers of the country have signed up to raice.

of the country have signed up to raise a bigger crop than they've ever raised. I believe with a little horse sense and patience, they are going to pull through.

were in harness.
If they don't, God help us and the

The Weather-A Dead Topic

As you know, mention of the weather on the radio these days is forbidden. The newspapers can describe a snow storm or a hot spell but the radio commentators cannot.

There is a good reason for this. A lurking submarine could pick up a newscast, and if enough facts con-cerning the weather were revealed by stations in enough widely sep-arated localities, even an amateur meteorologist—and the Germans are no amateurs—could make a pretty good weather forecast by putting two and two together.

But being unable to describe the manifestations of nature that I see on my way to work in the morning on my way to work in the morning is a terrible handicap to me. Recently I've gotten around the difficulty by talking about last week's weather, and before going on the air, reading what I was going to say to the censorship officials and getting their O. K. I. getting their O. K. In no case did they restrict me. The other day, however, I forgot to call up the Cen-sorship office but the Blue Network didn't forget. I got this message:

"Censorship says you have to cut "Censorship says you have to cut out all references to weather from now on. They say that there was nothing actually censorable in what you have said or what you have written today but so many complaints have come in from other stations, that you were violating stations that you were violating the regulations, and so many other stations have been using your comments on the weather as an excuse for violating the rule, that we will have to ask you to stop discussing the subject entirely."

The following is what censorship didn't let me say but what it has no objection to my printing:

"It was pretty hard the past week not to mention the swiftly changing scene which nature provided Washingtonians—one day, not so long ago a top coat was far too heavy for comfort and in the park, the dark patches were beginning to be studded with jeweled buds and the sunlight seemed to turn into solid gold on the bursting forsythia. On that balmy day I remarked—'Well, we must be due for a blissand.'

day I remarked—well, we must be due for a blizzard."

"Twenty-four hours later the fine snow began to fall and late that afternoon and the following morning, the tree limbs and trunks were the tree limbs and trunks were ing hard to get over an idea that he believes is right.

There is going to be a "land army." He said he didn't like the term because it made the farmers think they were going to have a lot of green city folks descend on them. He knows what the farmers think about folks who will scare the horses, aprain their ankles, try to milk a cow and when she doesn't give, say: "The valves are stuck."

the tree limbs and trunks were wrapped in great soft blankets of down—even the high branches were wide bands of white—but when we went home from work in the evening, the streets were dry and clean again and only here and there in the sheltering cups of the brown ivy leaves was a dust of snew—like a meager sprinkling of precious sugar on the rim of a doughnut."

The morning of that great day when atonement was made for the sins of all the world was nearly at hand. In the darkness of the night, following the institution of the Lord's Euger, and the words and prayer of our Lord (Cohn 18-17), He and His disciples came to the Garden of Gethsemane. # Use More Lereals

IN WARTIME MEALS!

13 billion dollars must be raised

HE GOVERNMENT of the United States is asking us to lend it 13 billion dollars in the next few weeks. We can do it. And we must do it. Every American must realize the truth:

In this, our toughest war, we've made a good start. We've trained a lot of men-made a lot of weapons-built a lot of ships.

But it's only a start. No man or woman among us would contend for a single instant that we're doing enough now to win this war!

We've Got to Build More!

We broke all records building 8 million tons of shipping last year. But grim-faced Army and Navy men will tell you that the 18 MILLION tons we're building this year still won't be enough!

We've Got to Fight More!

From now till this war is won, America must be on the offensive. In everincreasing numbers, your sons, brothers, husbands must go into actual battle. Our losses have already begun to mount—and they will not grow less.

And We've Got to Buy More War Bonds!

Sure we're all buying War Bonds now. But we've got to help pay for our increased fighting and building . . . We've got to match, as best we can, the sacrifice of those Americans who are toiling and sweating on a dozen battlefronts with the bloodiest yet to come. The blunt fact is this: to keep our war machine going, we've got to dig up 13 billion extra dollars this month. 13 billion dollars over and above our regular War Bond buying!

In the next few weeks you may be visited by one of the thousands of volunteers who are contributing their time and effort to this Drive. But don't wait for him. Make up your mind now that before this drive is weer, you're going to march right down to your nearest bank, Post Office, or place where they sell War Bonds, and do your dury. And don't ever forget this: in doing your duty, you're doing yourself one of the biggest

For United States War Bonds are the greatest investment in the world -bar none. They're investments tailored to fit your particular situation. And they give you the chance of a lifetime to order and get the kind of world you want to live in after this war. Every cent you put in War Bonds now will help to guarantee plenty of peacetime jobs making peace-living

For your Country's sake—for your own sake—invest all you can!

CHAPTER XVIII

Those were the days when Ann Lee remained in the big, still old house. She moved softly through the dim rooms, the shades drawn against the glowing outside heat. She trailed her fingertips along table tops, along the backs of chairs; she smoothed the time-darkened walls with a palm of her hand. "I love you, Old House," she sometimes whispered when quite alone. "You've got your secrets, haven't you, Old House? All sorts of memories; heaps of 'em. Good ones, and bad ones, too, I bet! Dear old Early Bill was young once here, wasn't he? What was he like then, Old House? My can't you tell me? And who was 'Sylvia'? Did something happen to her, did she die, long and long ago? When she was just a young girl like me? And did young Billy Cole, before he got to be old Early Bill, love her terribly? Did she love him, too, and was she, oh, so faithful and true to him?"

Dear, dead, faded rose leaves of romance, these were what she was finding everywhere. Folks thought that they knew old Early, Bill from the crown of his ragged old Stetson to his spurred boot heels—but they didn't know him the way she didthe way "Sylvia" had known him when both were young.

"I love you, Early Bill! You're an "I love you are!"

didn't know him the way sale the way "Sylvia" had known him when both were young.

"I love you, Early Bill! You're an old darling, that's what you are!"
And sometimes, alone in an early morning hour or in a hushed twilight, she would stand or sit very still, and would whisper,

"I know you are what folks call 'dead.' Early Bill—but I don't believe you've really gone away, not for one minute! I can feel you right here somewhere. Why, you're even near enough for me to reach out and touch—if only I could see you! And is Sylvia with you, too? You're laughing, Early Bill, you old scamp! I know you are!—Oh, why couldn't I have known you?"

I have come sooner? Why couldn't I have known you?"

And it was in the patio of early mornings and in the summer magic of the long, lingering twilights that Ann Lee and Bill Cole Cody grew into the pleasant habit of meeting, to speak little, to dwell in a warm awareness of each other that was a glow like that lying about them over the hills and valleys; sometimes they looked at each other, each seeking what lay deep down in the other's eyes, a little searching their own hearts. Aunt Jenifer spied on them at times from a safe, secret distance, then went her quiet cret distance, then went her quiet way smiling.

Thus they had been sitting on a particular evening, with even fewer words and with longer glances between them than ever before, when three occurrences burst upon them with the effect of sudden, unrelated and unexpected explosions. They had heard no sound of footsteps, so en-wrapped were they in the concerns of their world which at the moment of their world which at the moment was far sway from their immedi-ste surroundings as was the star from which the girl's eyes came now so swiftly to try to read through the shadowy half-light what was written on his face, when of a sudden Por-ficio stood before them.

"Dem Codito!" he burst out in transporture excitement

"Come tremendous excitement." Come quick! For the love of God, Senor, come as fast as lightning! No. to, no! Not the senorita! You see to come some. You won't believe it—I cannot tell you—it is a mireola, Don Codito!"

Aunt Jenifer's appearance must have smacked of magic; there she was as they came, hand in hand, into the lamp-lighted living room.

He released one of Ann's hands then and took one of Aunt Jenifer's. She saw how earnest and eager he was; she said quietly,

"All right, Cole. It's something to surprise us, but we won't be silly about it, especially since it's good news. We can take heaps of that, Ann and I."

When he told them, Aunt Jenifer

Ann and I.

When he told them, Aunt Jenifer sat down right in the middle of the floor; Ann reached out and clung tight to him and didn't seem to note that he had an arm about her.

Then Doc Joe came in. Jenifer scrambled to her feet and kissed him. Ann Lee deserted Cole Cody and put both arms about Doc Joe and gave him a mighty hug.

"Oh, Doe Joe! Doe Joe!" she kept saying over and over.

Doe Joe beamed all over. He made them each a bow; he kissed first Jenifer's hand, then Ann Lee's.

"Indies!" he explained throatifirst Jenifer's hand, then Ann Lee's.

"Ladies!" he exclaimed throatily, his face red. "I never thought anything could make a man so happy! It would have been worth it to be dead for sure, just to know that you cared like you do! I'm powerful happy and proud. Proud, ladies—shucks, that's no name for it."

"Aunt Jenny!" cried Ann Lee. "Listen!" cut in Cody. "Doc Joe wants us to hide him a little longer; for only a few minutes or a few hours, I don't know. He knows a lot about Rance Waldron; he'll tell you what it is. And while we didn't know where Waldron had gone, he knew and was having him watched all the time. And he knows that Waldron is on his way right now to the ranch and ought to be here any minute. So it's up to us to get Doc Joe under cover in a hurry, then be ready for Waldron's coming."

"That's it, my boy, that's it!" said Doc Joe hurriedly. "I don't want any beans spilled until I do the spilling. Get me out of sight, can you, ladies? I'll try to do a mite of explaining to you while we wait.

And that Waldron dog will be showing up in a jiffy. He's not to know I'm alive until I can up and tell him he's as good as dead. Where'll we go?"

"Into our rooms!" said Aunt Jenifer, and started leading the way.
"That's the safest place." Then she said, "Shush!" and all stood at at-

of hoofbeats not too far away.
"Hurry slong," said Cole Cody.
"I'll be in the main room. If it's Rance Waldron, I'll find out what Rance Waldron wanted the ranch and meant to have it and already counted it as good as his to have and to held or to coin into good hard money and toss where he liked, the way the wind tosses dead leaves.

He didn't knock; why should be, mening home, returning to his new glace? He showed the door open and strong in; his thurshe were cocked into his helt, his hat was far back on his theirth of hair, his eyes were bright and arrogant as they condensembed to trains with Dill Cole.

Right now, it looking at Rance Waldron's not unhandsome face, Bill Cola Cody's bloodstream was ruffled all but beyond endurance; it ran cold and it ran hot, and queer, blazing streaks of fire, like miniature stabs of lightning, shot through him.

"So you're still here, Cody, are you'r' he said curtly. "You know, you're a fool, Cody, for sticking around in any hope of catching any few drops that might spill out over the top of the bucket. Because, if you listen to me, there won't be any drops spilled over. It might be a good time if you tucked your tail between your legs and got out of here. You haven't any claim here. It's common knowledge, told in every saloon, that you had some sort of a trumped up 'will,' a faked thing—and that you haven't even got that now. So you can get out in a hurry, Mr. Cody. Am I right?"

Cody swallowed. He answered very quietly, very slowly.

hurry, Mr. Cody. Am I right?"

Cody swallowed. He answered very quietly, very slowly.

"Waldron, if I'm taking a big dose of you now, you'll know why later on. Suppose until time comes that you keep your mouth shu? I'm not asking a lot; the breath of the thoughts you think—stinks! Shut up!"

Waldron chose to laugh, and never was there a man who could put a nastier sneer into laughter which should be a pleasant thing and which can be detestable beyond most sounds.

"It's hard to swallow, huh, Cody?"
he jeered. "Thought you had an edge on the situation, didn't you?
Thought I'd take it the way you dished it out! Thought that if you couldn't take it any other way," he said, and jeered, "you'd gobble it for—"

Cody struck the way lightning strikes. Leaping yards across the floor, Bill Cole Cody swung with his left hand and struck a blow for any hard-striking man to be proud of. Only—Rance Waldron wasn't there, wasn't at the end of that perfect short arc. He was three or four quick leaps behind it, jerking out his guns. And he was in high heaven, with full provocation to burn his man down. Attacked without warning, he had every right to go for his guns, to kill his man. And it would be so easy! If there were only a witness to his predicament, that of a man defending himself against a murderous attack. a murderous attack.

That witness he had, but he kney that only later. It was Ann Lee who had stolen a-tip-toe from the room in which Doc Joe and Aunt Jenifer, two sentimental old fools, were explaining and talking two-at-a-time, and blinking against fat tear drops; a tremulous Ann Lee who was wondering where a certain William Cole Cody—"William," she thought; "that must be his real name; the name his mama and papa gave him"—had betaken himself. She heard and she saw, and she nearly dropped dead, hearing and seeing.

Now as Bill Cole Cody had leaped forward and the watchful Rance Waldron had leaped back to be out of his reach, Waldron fired and Cody struck again—and little Ann tried to scream and tried to shut her ever and could do peither. In her eyes, and could do neither. In a sort of trance she saw how it was that Bill Cody struck: Not with was that Bill Cody struck: Not with his fist this time, since that would have been too late; but as a bullet clipped through a loose fold of his sleeve, he struck with his whole body, launching himself like a long lean catapult with bullets ripping the air where he had been a split second before. And as his feet left the floor and he become a second the floor and he became a sort of giant's arrow in horizontal flight, fer, and started leading the way. "That's the safest place." Then she said, "Shush!" and all stood at attention, straining their ears. Through the silence which shut down about them they heard distinctly the thud sent toppling and crashing to the flow. floor.

Now, Bill Cole Cody didn't miss all the bullets which swarmed about him like angry bees. Two of them scraped him, barely laid the skin back, and their effect was to causa him to lose all temper which he hadn't had time to lose already. There was a scratch along the top of his head, and blood ran down into his left eye; there was a twin scratch six or eight inches long down the back of his left shoulder. Ann Lee saw the blood and thought he was surely dead, and came running; she'd grab itance Waldron's guns and shoot him all to pieces! But no intercession was needed. Now, Bill Cole Cody didn't miss guns and shoot him all to pieceat But no intercession was needed. As Waldron spilled back on the floor one of his guns fier out of his hands; Bill Cody, though with one eye dissemed, could see that. The other gun resting in its brief are to blow his healts out, but Cody's hand wrist; be all but broke it in the powers of his grip; showly he twisted it as that the tounts of Waldron's gun was against Waldron's lemple. And than Bill Chafy spoke his little agencie.

HOUSEHOL EMOS ... by Lynn Chambers

Homemakers May Learn Ration Wisdom Through Study.

This easily prepared gelatin des-sert uses all unrationed food. It's pretty but easy to make, and will top off either a light or heavy meal.

These are times when changes are the fashion—and that particularly applies to changes in foods and cooking methods. Mrs. America can no longer dash to the grocer's and get enough canned or processed foods to put together a quick meal. Nor can she get together a meal, even one that would take time, with those rationed foods.

Points must be budgeted far more carefully than dollars and cents in Points must be budgeted far more carefully than dollars and cents in the past! That is the realization every homemaker has been feeling since Ration Book II went into effect. Out of that has arisen one maxim: never to buy a canned or processed food if a fresh one is available.

processed food if a fresh one is available.
Confusion, indecision, and slow-ness in buying were the adjectives grocers used when buying with War Ration Book II began. But this is gradually wearing away as Mrs. America learns new shopping methods.

ods.

Since point values change monthly, it's a good idea to keep a list of point values on hand when making the menu. Plan menus for a week at a time—marketing lists and budget lists all on hand when you're doing this important bit of work. Don't go to the store and wander aimlessly, selecting whatever appeals to the eye. Even if you have four or five ration books from which to spend, it's certain you won't get spend, it's certain you won't get enough out of them by the hit or miss method.

Keep on the lookout for point val-ues which may change—they vary from month to month and sometimes change during the month as the public's buying habits are watched.

Haphazard shopping, meal-planning, and carelessness about health of the family are out of date. The homemaker must alert and vigilant now as never before to make of her family the strongest and healthiest possible unit-for a healthy America is a strong America.

Fresh Vegetables: To those of you accustomed to using canned vegetables and learning how many they serve, these hints are given on how many fresh vegetables will serve:

Asparagus: One pound yields two cups, cut, serve three to four.
Beans, green or yellow; yields three to three and one-half cups, serves four or five.

Beeta: One pound yields three to four servings. Use young beet greens as vegetable, too!

1 package (12 to 16-ounce) macaroni 2½ cups cooked, fresh peas French dressing

Radish roses

Salad greens—optional Deviled eggs

Deviced eggs
10 to 12 hard-cooked eggs
2 tablespoons saiad dressing
2 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar
11/4 teaspoons mustard

teaspoons worcestershire sauce teaspoon salt

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon celery salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Cut a half-inch slice from rounded end of egg. Cut a saw tooth edge around white, if desired. Remove yolk carefully. Press yolks and bits of leftover whites through sieve, add remaining ingredients and beat until light and fluffy. Refill shells, using pastry tube for decorating top, if desired.

Boil macaroni in salted water according to directions on package. Drain, rinse, then drain thoroughly.

Marinate with a little french dress-ing, then chill.

Cook peas, drain, and save stock for soup. Marinate peas in french dressing. To make salad, heap macaroni in center of dish. Alternate deviled eggs and radish roses around edge pressing them into macaroni. Fill with a border of peas between eggs and macaroni.

A main dish salad that's a meal in itself includes macaroni, deviled eggs, and a ring of freshly cooked peas. This supplies a good quantity of protein to build and repair body tissues and gives food with that stick-to-the-ribs quality.

> Marmalade Bayarian. (Serves 6)

1 package orange-flavored gelatin 1% cups hot water 4 teaspoon salt 14 cup heavy cream

cup orange marmalade

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add salt. Chili until cold and syrupy. Fold in cream, whipped only until thick and shiny, but not stiff. Fold in marmalade.

Following closely on the heels of the United States treasury's pro-posal for a $5,000,000,000 postwar in-ternational stabilization plan came Lord Keynes' proposal for a world credit institution "designed to ex-pand world trade and serve as a genuine organ of truly international government."

Unlike the American plan, the British fiscal expert's program would subordinate gold as the post-war international medium of exchange. The announcement of Keynes' proposal made in a British white paper said "the purpose of the clearing union is to supplant gold as a governing factor, but not dispense with it."

United Nations' Conferences First Real Test of Solidarity

Russia Seen as Vital Factor in World Organization or Disorganization; Mutual Understanding Essential to Worth-While Peace.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator. WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

This month will witness the first test of how united the United Nations are. The first of the conferences of representatives of the countries allied against the Axis are to meet and discuss food. On the success of that gathering, much will depend.

that gathering, much will depend.

It may be just as well that the governments linked together under the very general and very idealistic statement of principles, the Atlantic Charter, are going to begin with a very material, a very down-to-earth and likewise a very vital question—food.

It would be too much to expect to begin at once to discuss the abstract subjects which are bound to arise when the larger implications of the philosophy of government are considered. People have to eat to the

It seems reasonable to believe that the food question can be han-dled. Of course, it can easily be disposed of if the United States simply agrees to continue a lend-lease operation indefinitely with no demand for remuneration except vague promises. That, of course, is what the cynical say will happen.

And that brings me to the crux of the whole question of America's role in world affairs. If we go on the assumption as the isolationists do, that heads you win, tails we lose, and that America is going to be played for a sucker, we might as well throw up the whole idea of in-ternational co-operation now and put our heads back into the sand until the next Pearl Harbor.

On the other hand, the sincere proponents of international co-operation believe that America is smart enough and strong enough and wise enough and unselfish enough to help enough and unselfish enough to help build the machinery which will at least make the world's wheels go around a little better than they have so far. We created a United States out of country with every geograph-ical and political factor that exists anywhere. We woulded to the conanywhere. We welded into one a conglomerate people representing every race on the face of the globe,

Difficulties Ahead

However, it is only fair to look at some of the difficulties ahead.

Russia, if not an obstacle, is at least a problem for several reasons. With an Allied victory, Russia, both because of her contribution to the victory and because of her size, position and strength, is a vital factor in any world organization—or disorganization. She is not actually a member of the United actually a member of the United Nations but rather an associated power as the United States was in the last war. She has not made a clear statement of her war or peace

She is, at present, occupying territory of what was once free and independent nations; a part of Finland, all of the Baltic states, a part of Poland.

Recently, Gardner Cowles, presumably speaking as a member of the Office of War Information, said:

"If Americans don't make an effort te understand Russia and the Russian place in the scheme of things to follow this war, I fall to see how we can possibly hope to build a worth-while peace."

That, of course, is true. However.

That, of course, is true. However, that is only half of the story. It is mutual understanding that is necessary. Mr. Cowles might have said:

"If the Russian government does not encourage the people to under

"If the Russian government does not encourage the people to understand America, we can't build a worth-while peace."

It is a two-handled jug.

We do minunderstand much about Russia. We are misinformed on some points. The Russian government has falled to inform us on others. For instance, few people in this country know and many are probably unwilling to believe what Cowles, who ought to know what he is talking about, says about private property under the Soviets.

About Property About Property

"Workers may acquire any armount of consumer ground," ha table us, "any amount of farmiture, an subo, etc., for their own use. The distinction from our economy is that in Busaia, an individual may not say may may mean mesoure producing property."

Well, what of it. California never threatened to second because of New England's blue laws or New York state because of the way they turn out divorces in Nevada.

The important thing is, what are Russia's intentions concerning other nations? On my desk, there is be-ginning to accumulate the literature of the various little nations—Poland, Latvia, Finland, who are already starting to plead for the restoration of lost territory or sovereignty.

Anti-Communistic feeling is strong In America. You will hear tales of how Stalin expects to make a deal with Germany, how he expects to turn France communist the moto turn France communist the mo-ment the country is freed from Ger-many. You will also hear the as-surances of people like Mr. Cowles who say: "Stalin no longer feels that the survival and development of the Soviets depend on world revoof the Soviets depend on world revo-lution." That Russia wants to be allowed to go her own way, to work out her own salvation and once she has assurance that a combination of other nations will not arise against her, she will be only too content to live and let live.

I was talking with a seasoned and pretty cynical observer who has seen the seamy side of foreign relations at close range for many years. He is suspicious of Russia, equally suspicious of Britain. But even he said to me:

"Before we talk too much about the obstacles in the way of an inter-national understanding, let's find out what the British and Russian and other statesmen really want."

The Goal

That is all the gentlemen in the senate are asking, who are working so arduously to obtain the passage of the Ball resolution which would put the United States government on record as favoring the creation of an international organization to team the page of assuring United keep the peace, of assuring United States' co-operation in policing the world against any aggressor.

There were few people who, when this United Nation was born, believed that it could live. It did. Norman Angell, in that exceedingly cogent book of his, "Let the People Know," concludes one chapter with these words:

these words:

"In the old days, we felt impelled to burn a man alive if he did not attend our church. Never, men were sure, could those of the true faith live at peace with heretics. But they found that men of different faiths could live together; that they could keep their differences, yet be loyal to each other in the achievement of their common purposes. Rement of their common purposes. Re-ligion is not less than nationalism. What is possible in the one field is possible in the other."

Whether we agree with Mr. Angell or not, there seems to be no sensible reason why we shouldn't try to find out if he is right. Peace is worth

Early symptoms are changes in the emotions and behavior, the pa-tient gradually losing interest in the things that formerly interested him.
Then may follow a loss of interest

The lessons we learn from the above are, (a) insulin shock cures many cases of dementia precox, (b) the earlier the insulin shock treatment is given after the symptoms appear, the better are the chances of a cure.

Food Essentials For Growing Child

Some of the older men and womm must look with astonishment at the increasing variety of medical specialists. In their youth a physician took care of the needs of his patients, even doing much of his men surgery unless it was surgery of the heain, the thyroid gland, or some other special organ. There were neurologists—nerve specialists —in those days but no psychiatrists (behavior specialists). Later came hally specialists — pediatricians, gland specialists—endocrinologists, then allergists (finding special substones causing hay fever, asthma, stomach opertments) and lately gentatricisms who treat the special silments of elderly people,

Chicken and Rice-Fine Favorite for Easter

Easter Essentials

How differently you will plan your Easter dinner this year! You may have to forget many of the traditional foods and use only what your ration points will allow you—or what you can obtain at the grocer's. Many of you in former times had

POST WAR PLANNING

AND SELFISHNESS

EARLY IN 1018 the Allied armics in Europe were being hard pressed. It was about that time when President Wilson enunciated his 14 points, which preferred an idealistic peace to the German pecale. At that time political lenders were willing to subscribe to the American President's Macilians.

idealism.
In the latter part of October, 1915,
I talked to Clemenceau in Paris, The in the latter part of October, 1918, I talked to Clemenceau in Paris, The end of the war was at hand. The Germans were beaten. I asked the French premier about President Wilson's 14 points.

"Meaningless phrases," he replied. "France will dictate the peace terms and they will not be mild."

anild."

It is the old adage:
"The Devil was sick—the Devil a monk would be,
The Devil was well—the Devil a monk was he."

The Second World war is still on.

The Second World war is still on. The Second World war is still on. We have not yet won it. Today we talk of the future in idealistic terms, but as the Allied armies advance, as victory draws nearer, we find springing up the same old element of self-shness, the desire for gain for ourselves, regardless of what others may lose. That is human, and that human trait will again sit in at the peace table. It can be prevented only by a definite agreement between the Allied nations, prepared and subscribed to while the outcome of the war is still in some doubt.

The end of the war will not bring to the world the millenium under any conditions. It could bring some advance in international relations.

advance in international relations. It could bring agreement between the victors, rather than a new row over a division of the spoils. But if these things are to come, that agree-ment must be made while the war is still on. The war will not eradi-cate the sin of selfishness.

HOW LIVING STANDARD HAS ADVANCED

HAS ADVANCED

FOR SHAVING PURPOSES, our grandfathers had a cup with a tencent cake of soap and a brush to provide the needed lather. The cake of soap was good for six or more months. Our fathers had a 25-cent "stick" of shaving soap and a brush. The cup was outmoded. This generation gets its shaving lather in a tube and uses about one tube a month. It is a little thing, but in a small way, it illustrates the American advance in our standard of living. Today we think of what would ing. Today we think of what would have been a luxury of a generation or two ago as a living necessity. Americans, we propose to continue that advance in our standards of living, to make the luxuries of to-day the necessities of tomorrow.

INDUSTRY PLANNING AND WORLD PEACE

The world can "win the peace" with world industrial post-war planning. It is not for government to plan how to operate industry in the post-war world, but it is needful post-war world, but it is needful that government make possible the planning on the part of industry. When the last gun has been fired—when the tast gun has been mred-and may it be soon—there will no longer be a demand for ships and planes and tanks and guns. The need for them will have passed. In-stead, there will be a demand for food, homes, cars—for all the essen-tials of living. tials of living.

First, industry must have the wherewithal to transform its plants to peace-time needs. Government has not, and is not, making that possible. It has made possible and, in fact, has forced the payment of extremely high wages to those em-ployed in war production but it has left nothing in the hands of industry with which to provide jobs and goods for a post-war world.

Government has established a wage scale which necessitates high varies for commodities the force. prices for commodities the farmer must buy, a wage scale which industry cannot continue after the war without continuing those high prices. At the same time, government put a larmer could charge for his product and it will undoubtedly continue that ceiling during the years when we must feed orld. It all adds up to an im possible condition and is but leading to a deflation period similar to the one that followed World War I.

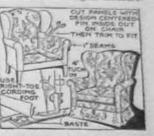

A YOUNG NEWSPAPER FRIEND gave me a new phrase. Instead of referring to organized labor as being responsible for retarding the war effort, he said it was the "or-ganized leaders of labor" who were responsible and upon whose heads should be placed the blame. "And," said he, "in the end they will pay when our buys come home."

THE 2ND WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON

There is one stark and simple fact about war which you had better get straight . . . and quickly, too THERE IS NO SECOND PLACE IN A WAR — IT'S EITHER WIN OR LOSE!

This war is being fought for tremendous stakes :: ?

- ... for your life and your liberty.
- ::: for your church and your children.
- 1:: for your freedom and your future.

And it's WINNER TAKE ALL. Don't forget that for a minute.

The winner will dictate whether tomorrow you shall be a free citizen of a free world, or a helpless serf to a "master race."

The winner will dictate whether you shall live and prosper under the Four Freedoms, or toil hopelessly in the darkness of a "New Order."

The winner will dictate::: because the winner takes all.

The winner takes all. All you own, all you hold dear.

The winner is being decided right now:::today:::this very minute:::on battlefields all over the world. Will you stand idly by:::or throw all your weight on our side?

The weight of mighty tanks and planes. The weight of thousands of guns and millions of shells. The weight of billions of dollars ... 13 billions which your country asks you to lend during this Drive; Your country wants to borrow every idle dollar you have every dollar except what you need to of life.

You'll have to give up some luxury or comfort which was dear to your heart. You'll have to postpone some pleasure which you had been eagerly anticipating.

But what of it?

Your sons and brothers and husbands are dying out there ..., fighting your fight. Surely it is no sacrifice to lend your dollars while they are giving their lives.

They need your help. They need the weapons your money can buy. If one of the War Loan volunteers calls on you... greet him with open pocketbook. Remember, Uncle Sam's goal is 13 billion dollars in April.

Don't wait to be asked. Go to your nearest bank, investment dealer, broker, Post Office or issuing agency and lay your money on the line. Remember it's an investment you're making—an investment that pays a good return and insures a happier future for you and your loved ones.

So lend up to the limit.

You'll sleep better for it.

64 JACKSON GREGORY @ GREGORY

THE STORY SO FART And Les and Cola Cody, bensitelarias under two identical wills of Old Sill Cole, sought to discover who had fired the fatal bullet at Old Sill. Suspicion centered around Rance Waldron, who, posing as Old Hill's nephow, was Iving at the ranch when Asin and Cody arrived. Doe Joe and the Judge, commissioned by Old Bill to earry ont his last wishes, were waylaid and shot by Rance Waldron. Believing both men dead, and to divert suspicion, Rance killed his accompiler, Tom Gough. But Doe Joe did not die, and he was at the ranch to lend a hand when Cole Cody decided to lick Hance Waldron, who gave up almost at once.

Now conclude the story. "So long Cal, gracias, amigo, "Wm. Cole, alias Early Bill."

CHAPTER XIX

The gun fell from Waldron's fin-gers. Little Ann Lee, standing so close to them both now, caught it up, ran for the other, backed off and stood in a corner with both waspons in her hands. The two men-stood up.

weapons in her nanus, stood up, stood up, "All right," Waldron said. "I know when I'm licked."
Cody shook his head. He was thinking of the old Judge, of old thinking of the olf Tom Gough shot like a dog. He said quietly, Waldron, you're not licked

"No, Waldron, you're not licked et. Stand up."

Waldron stood up. New rage red-dened the pin-points of his eyes, new strength flowed into him and perhaps new courage. He charged like a bull—

like a bull—

Bill Cody struck the one blow then that was like a coup de grace. It took Rance Waldron on the point of the chin; it seemed to lift him inches from the floor. And this time when he fell, whether taunted by words or threatened with further bodily punishment, he was beyond rising.

Ann Lee thought him dead. So did Aunt Jenifer. So, for that mat-ter, did Doc Joe.

In the 'kitchen, "Oh, Cole Cody! Your poor dear face!" gulped little Ann Lee. "Your poor eye!" and tears began spattering like summer rain.

Bill Cody caught her in his arms;
he forgot the unloveliness of his hattered face and crookedly leering eye; he drew her tight and tighter and kissed her. And it is of record that Ann Lee returned his kiss exscily the way it was received. that Ann Lee returned his kiss exactly the way it was received, a fact to be sworn to if necessary by Cal Roundtree who, just then bursting into the room stood a moment transfixed on the threshold.

Cal virtually brushed Ann Lee aside, grasping Bill Cole Cody by an arm, yanking him close, then whispering into his ear.

"I bet Rance Waldron's here."

"I bet Rance Waldron's here, from the looks of you," was what he said. "And, Cody—"

"No secrets from Ann Lee," said Cody, pulling away. "Sure he's here. And so is old Doc, and both Ann and Aunt Jenifer know that, too."

and Aunt Jenifer know that, too."
Doe Joe and Aunt Jenifer, hearing voices, came into the kitchen.
"Keep all this dark from Waldron until tomorrow," said Cal Roundtree. "That's all I ask."
"That's fair enough, Cal," nodded old Doc Joe. "Only just what is it that we're to keep dark?"

But at that Cal closed his mouth after the fashion of buttoning it.

after the fashion of buttoning it. Then he shook his head. Finally he

"Tell you at sun-up. Just keep Rance Waldron alive and handy. 'Night, folks."

Before sun-up all in the house breakfasted, even to a savage, sul-len Rance Waldron, save Doc Joe alone who as yet wanted Waldron to alone who as yet wanted Waldron to know nothing about his presence, about his still being above ground. Yet Waldron, though battered and angry, had a certain malicious grin in his eye. Over the coffee he said with a dash of his old cock-sure Cal Roundtree came up from the Cal Roundiree came up from the bunkhouse. He carried an open envelope in his hand. He cleared his throat, forgot all about saying good morroing, and amounced a bit of news that came pretty close to knocking several people out of their state.

"Me," said Cal. "I just got a let-ter last night. It's a letter from a gar by name of Mr. William Cols. shows for and wide as Early Bill."

The first to gamp out a word was Rance Waldren, heatily on his feet.

You fout Early Bill's dead and horself Are you crayy?

Cody except it on whipped the letter out of its envelope and stared at it is long triumb. He stared from their face to face, then back at the

as you get this, which I'm writing sitting on top a nice big pink-and-white cloud sort of learning to get the hang of a harp; and I want you to shift me over where I told you. Now get a move on, and me, I'm having me my fun yet.

"Wm. Cole, slias Early Bill."
Rance Waldron pretended to laugh. The thing of course was some sort of hoax.

"No, it ain't," said Cal soberly.
"This letter just come, like I say, into Bald Eagle by stage last night. It was sent in another envelope from a feller I'd heard old Early Bill talk about a time or two, a feller that used to be friends with him. I reckon Bill sent it round-about way to get here when he wanted it to." He cleared his throat again and added, "As for him squatting on a cloud twanging a harp, it's a lie, and I'd tell him so; most likely he's shoveltell him so; most likely he's shoveling coal down hell-wards. But never mind; I got Porfirio outside, and Gaucho and a couple shovels, and we start doing what the old fool said do. Come ahead."

Out under the three pines, hushed and wondering and with a touch of awe, at Early Bill's favorite dawn hour men went to work with their shovels. So exclusively were they occupied in what was going forward, none particularly remembered Rance Waldron, who, sneering after his fashion, hands on his hips, stood a few steps withdrawn—none, that is few steps withdrawn—none, that is except old Doc Joe who had taken his chance to slip out of the house and follow on, and who now peered from behind the farther of the three Little Ann Lee, her face very Little Ann Lee, her face very white, her eyes enormous, clutched Aunt Jenifer's arm tight in both hands, and Aunt Jenifer put a comforting arm around her. The sods flew under the strongly wielded shovels; the soil was light and loose; very swiftly the excavation took form, some seven feet long, half as wide, two or three feet deep—wide, two or three feet deep—

"I'm going to the house," murmured Ann. "I—I can't stand it!"
Cal Roundtree, down in the excavation looked up and said sharply.

"You stay right where you are!"
And an instant later he exclaimed triumphantly.

"Here it is!"
He reached down, scratched in the loose soil with both hands and unearthed a small iron box. He tossed it up to them, to Cody and Ann both, and said, "You'll see this one opens with two keys just like the other. You two better open it! Old Early Bill ain't here at all; me and Gaucho moved him the night after he was planted here."

With trembling fingers they did get it open. There were folded papers within. The top one said briefly, "This is my Ace in the Hole; me, I siways figured to hold one in me, I always figured to hold one in any game like this!" Then there was a letter addressed to Ann Lee. There was one for William Cole Cody. There was a lone, sealed envelope, and it was addressed to them to-and it was addressed to them together.

And next was a picture, a fine likeness of an old, lean, devil-maycare man with a humorous gleam in his eye. And it was inscribed, "To Ann Lee and Cole Cody from an old friend, Early Bill."

And Ann came close to ahrieking out, "Why, I knew him! Aunt Jenny, look! Don't you remember that old man who came to our house, and he was broke and sick and sad-looking, and we took him in and—"

and—"
And Cole Cody, a queer catch in his voice, was muttering, "So that's Early Bill, huh? The darned old rascal! I played poker with him; he let me skin him out of his eye teeth; he stuck around and let me stake him; he even asked to borrow money from me—if I'd have known who he was I'd have chased him off the ranch!"
They read their letters hastily. They read their letters hastily;

Ann was crying softly and Cody was making rough noises in his throat. "Open the big envelope," said Cal. "That's Bill's Ace in the Hole." Again they found a brief note for them both.

them both:

them both:

"I've had me my fun I reckon. I thought as how, knowing the two of you pups, you might fight a while, then fall in love and get married; I'd like that fine. But maybe things will go some other way, and maybe that darned sneaky varmint name of Rance Waldron might throw a monkey wrench in the machine; I've a hunch he's the bozo hired somebody to shoot me down, him being too foxy and maybe scared. And now here's my third will and, by gravy, my last: And you'll find it leaves everything I've got to you two kids, fight or don't fight, marry or don't marry. And honest, kids, I dld have a good time—and I'm still having it right now. So long."

And there was the will!

And there was Doc Joe.

"Grab that Waldron hombre," he shouted. "He's going to hang; and me, I'm going to see that he does."

Waldron whirled. His face went as dead white as Ann's had been. He could have had no thought for that first instant save that he was looking on a dead man, one he himself had murdered. Then he was "I've had me my fun I reckon, I that first instant save that he was looking on a dead man, one he him-self had murdered. Then he was quick to know he had been tricked, and he was quick to snatch out from and he was quick to snatch out from his belt a gun that no one had seen, that no one dreamed he had, that no one ever knew where he had come by it. He swung it, murder in his eyes, upon Doc Joe.

Very neatly Porfirio, as watchful as a cat, shot Rance Waldron through the back of the head.

And Bill Cole Cody very gently put his arm about little Ann Lee and led her away, led her clinging to him, back to the patio into which the early sun was just entering.

THE RISEN LORD

LESSON TEXT John 20:1-17. GOLDEN TEXT He is rises. - Mark 18:8.

"Christ is living! My people shall know it. I shall preach about it again and again until they believe as I do." So exclaimed Dr. Dale of London when the glory of Christ's resurrection laid hold of him as never before. There began that day the custom of singing an Easter hymn in his church every Sunday morning. morning. Easter has come again, and it

Easter has come again, and it ought to make us giad to recall the resurrection power of Christianity in the midst of the world's awful sorrow and death. Easter should mean more to us than ever this year, if we believe in Christ. If we do not, why not rid ourselves of the dark garments of unbelief, and put on the bright and beautiful garment of faith in a living Christ. Let us be clad in His righteousness.

The first Easter Sunday had scarce.

The first Easter Sunday had scarce The first Easter Sunday had scarcely dawned when the faithful Mary came to the tomb. Finding the stone rolled away from its entrance she ran to find Peter and John. ## Peter and John Saw the Empty Tomb (vv. 1-10).

Peter, though he had denied his Lord, was not sent away by his brethren. They knew his true heart, and evidently the gentle and loving John had taken him to his home. Mary knew where to find him. What a tender incidental indication of the Christian spirit of the brethren of Peter. John and Peter ran to the tomb.

The unusual news so stirred them that John the younger did not think to await the slower steps of Peter. He came first, but when he did he only looked in. Peter had no hesitation, but went right in. What he found there was most significant.

found there was most significant.

Here was twofold evidence that the body of our Lord had not been stolen. The burial clothes were there. They had not been carried off by a thief. Nor had they been snatched aside by a deceiver. They lay in order. There off to one side, carefully folded, was the head covering. Jesus was gone, but He had left in all the dignity and majesty of a triumphant Lord. a triumphant Lord.

What they saw caused John to be lieve. It appears (v. 9) that they had not yet understood the clear teachings of the Old Testament regarding the death and resurrection garding the death and resurrection of Christ. They were slow to believe. Let not any in our day, with its greater light, fall to believe.

Peter and John came and saw—and then "they went away again unto their own home." And so they missed seeing Christ Himself.

II. Mary Met the Risen Christ (vv. 11-17).

The tears of Mary were the genu-ine expression of a devoted heart, but they were nevertheless mistaken tears. The question of the angel reveals that fact. Why weep because His body was gone, when that was the very thing which should give her joy? Why weep over a dead Christ when He was alive?

How often our discomment is when He was alive?

How often our discernment is dimmed by tears and our judgment warped by sorrow. We look on the wrong side of our circumstances and see only a tangle of threads and blurred colors. On the other side God is weaving a pattern of beauty and blessing, which will be our joy through all eternity. Why not remember that now? member that now?

Blinded with tears and troubled in heart, Mary did not even recognize the Lord when He spoke to her, But our Lord looking into her soul and knowing that it was her very love for Him which made it hard for her to think of anything but His death, gave to this true-hearted woman the privilege of first seeing Him after His resurrection.

As He spoke her name, she knew Him. We recall that Jesus Him-self had said that He was the Good Shepherd who "calleth his own sheep by name" (John 10:3-14).

He knows your name and mine, fellow Christian, and one day we too shall hear His voice even as Mary did on that day. She believed and worshiped. Let us follow her example this Easter day.

They are all right in their proper place. But let us be sure that no adult fails to meet the risen Christ today, and let us be sure that the smallest child knows that this is more than the day of bunnies and candy eggs. They will rejoice in the knowledge that a victorious Christ lives to give them eternal life.

Let us really "keep the feast" this year, purging out the leaven of hypocray and dead works, and remembering Christ (see I Car. 3.1, 3).

You'll Get Less in '43

Controversies might rage over whether the Office of War Information had or had not sugar-coated its estimates of forthcoming food shortages, but the sober fact remained that civilians will have at least 6 per cent less to get this year than per cent less to eat this year than they consumed last year.

Warning that the food situation is serious, OWI experts said, "There will be more or less continuous shortages of some kinds of food—such as canned vegetables . . . (and) . . meat products." Civilians, however, will get enough to eat. In fact, compared to the prewar years they will have about 3 per cent more food.

Among food supplies on the debit side for 1943, OWI roughly estimated: 11 per cent less meat, 21 per cent less butter, 11 per cent less cheese, 3 to 25 per cent less canned vegetables, 27 per cent less canned and shell fish. Among items on the credit side, OWI calculated: 30 per cent more chickens. 57 per cent more chickens. cent more chickens, 57 per cent more margarine, 13 per cent more frozen margarine, 13 per cent more frozen fruits, 7 per cent more wheat and 13 per cent more rye. Listed among food supplies that will be about the same as last year were: Fresh and frozen fish, eggs, fluid milk and cream, lard and other cooking fats, fresh citrus fruits, potatoes and sweet potatoes. sweet potatoes.

Cuts Food Waste

Better planning by mess officers and co-operation by cooks and KPs has reduced the amount of food wasted at army camps by more than half since the beginning of the year, it was disclosed when testimony of a private hearing of the senate war investigating Truman committee was made public.

Before the army's conservation program was inaugurated as much as 20 to 25 per cent of the food served at camps was wasted. This wastage has now been reduced to about 11 per cent—a saving sufficient to feed a million civilians for Figures on the extent of army Figures on the extent of army food conservation were presented by Maj. Gen. E. B. Gregory, quartermaster general. He told the committee that army food purchases had to be sufficient for an average of 2,100,000 men overseas and 4,500,000 men in this country during 1943. He indicated that the average size of the army will be 6,600,000 this year. year.

PLAIN TALK: Business Gets Lecture

Silver-thatched Commerce Secre-tary Jesse H. Jones gave business in general some of his native Texas "plain talk" when he appeared as a speaker before the Committee for Economic Development in New York

York.

Pointing out that the nation cannot "indulge in another depression," but must pay the costs of this war which he said had been estimated at around 250 billion dollars, Jones said "the problem will be to provide jobs at a living wage for every person willing to work."

Business must form its own postwar plans and meet the problems

Rumors From Embattled Nations Hint of Plans For Organized Extermination of Enemy Peoples.

Washington, D. C.

It was a soft, Washington spring afternoon. The late shifts of government workers were hurrying home. The two guardian magnolias that stand on the White House lawn were tipped with the rays of the setting sun. My thoughts were neither on this blissful scene nor on the latest news of the battlefront which I had just finished broadcasting. Frankly, I was concerned chiefly with dinner.

The announcer was just finishing the "commercial" and I was picking my hat up from the sofa in the studio when I saw the engineer beckoning to me from behind the glass wall of his goldfish bowl. He held up a paper on which was printed
"Stop in News Room—Important!"
I did. The atmosphere was tense as it is frequently these days. A notice had just appeared on the news ticker to the effect that the White House was about to release an important statement.

It is possible, but not probable, that the thing we were all thinking that statement was going to announce but didn't, will happen before these lines reach print—the invasion of Europe. Until it does, we shall continue to expect it and while the busy home front keeps our nose pretty well to the grindstone, one hint from overseas and an atmosphere of suspense envelops the Capitol.

Secrecy's Curtain

Meanwhile, there is the feeling

Secrecy's Curtain

Meanwhile, there is the feeling that tremendous things are happening under a heavy curtain of secrecy in Europe even the hint of which does not reach the press or the public.

does not reach the press or the public.

Russia, of course, is a mystery.
What is happening there? Is the remarkable Red army, which in the past has seemed to be able to draw endless men and supplies from nowhere after each crushing defeat, finally exhausted? Spring came early to the steppes this year and the Germans, if they are able, will launch their annual summer offensive a month earlier. They hope to be able to break the Red army this time and then hold back the remnants with a sparsely manned but intricate line of defense while they turn their attention to the Allies in the West.

No one knows what the strength of Russia is today. One does know that a terrible hate has been enkinthat a terrible hate has been enkindled in the whole race against the Germans and it is reported that the Red army has threatened that if Soviet forces ever do reach German soil, they will leave no human being living. One story has been spread through Switzerland that if an Allies' army is on the continent when Russia breaks Germany's eastern Russia breaks Germany's eastern frontiers—if she does—that the Germans will open their western front to the Allies and let them in rather than expose themselves to the Rus-

Plan for Prisoners

Another report has seeped out of Russia. It is continuously repeated that simply because of the inconvenience of caring for prisoners, both the Germans and Russians have been shooting man who are cartired. been shooting men who are captured or who surrender. On the other hand, the Russians are said to be carefully preserving some of the men they take. Russian propagands drawed over the Corman lines. men they take. Russian propaganda, dropped over the German lines, is very alluring. Some of the pamphlets instruct the German soldiers to sugrender and bring with them the leaflet which acts as a passport.

Then, according to a report which

Then, according to a report which has come in from a neutral country, the prisoners are carefully examined and a small percentage weeded out for Soviet indoctrination. They go through a long course of instruction so careful that it is said finally only 10 per cent are accorded as tion so careful that it is said finally only 10 per cent are accepted as satisfactory. These elite are then trained to be used as the spearhead of a political invasion of Germany. Hatred, like that in Russia, has poisoned all Europe. There is a belief now on the part of many of the conquered countries that the Germans, having given up hope of vicconquered countries that the Ger-mans, having given up hope of vic-tory, intend to go forward with a systematic extermination of other races within their reach, as they have in Poland and with the Jews, so that regardless of what happens, the Teutonic stock will dominate numerically when the war is over. To meet this, the other nations are talking about turning the tables and beginning organized mass murder of Germans everywhere the moment the Nazi armies lay down their arms.

Only the other day, I talked with a widely traveled Russian newspaper man, who said frankly that he believed this was the proper course. How powerful this spirit of blood revenge really is and whether it will be carried.

revenge really is and whether it will be carried out, one can only guess. Another mystery of which there are only tiny hints is the power and scope of the underground move-ments in the occupied countries and the extent to which Allied agents are now working hand-in-hand with the saboteurs in France and Belgium and particularly Holland. Hints leak out.

A secret German report which reached Allied hands stated the fol-

A secret German report which reached Allied hands stated the following:

"Sometime ago, English parachutists landed near Prague. When they were held up by the local police, they obeyed the order, 'hands up.' But they carried a special device on their belts with a pistol from which cords ran to their hands. The latter fired the pistol. Thus they succeeded by a quick and appropriate movement in accounting for the policemen."

Here is a part of another enemy report, revealing the activities behind the lines. It came through Italian military channels:
"During the attack on the Fuka Aerdrome (Africa) the enemy Allied troops put up distress signals. They succeeded in enticing the sentries away from their posts for a time and successfully carried out their sabotage."

Reports have come of British saboteurs gaining entrance to fac-and successfully carried out their sabotage."

Reports have come of British saboteurs gaining entrance to factories in the daytime, planting time bombs and leaving. A device has been perfected which can be carried concealed in the hand—I have held one—attached by a clever means to a tank car or a locomotive, it would blow it to pieces. That is only one of hundreds of ingenious gadgets which have been perfected for this strange work of secret destruction that is going on everywhere. Even more ingenious are the methods which the underground organizations in France and Italy the methods which the underground organizations in France and Italy are using to obtain arms and sup-plies for the insurrection when the plies for the insurrection moment comes.

Some day, "an important statement from the White House" will come, heralding events many of which we have not even dreamed.

While the airplane factories turn out bombers and fighters, the airminded leaders continue to make their air plans for peace. The latest scheme which has come to my attention is an announcement from the Northeast Airlines company which says this company has made application for a helicopter service to carry air mail and air express in New England.

These little planes that can rise straight up and hover, can land on a parlor rug. They would, in this proposed service, land on the roofs of post office buildings—provided, I take it, that the buildings are not of the roccoo vintage with peaked and pointed and turreted roofs.

The service would carry first-class as well as air mail, according to the application filed with the Civil Aeronautics board. Four hundred points would be included. The little "flying automobiles" would not only fly between towns and cities but would carry mail from urban centers While the airplane factories turn

A national labor service act still hovers just beyond the horizon. The chief purpose of Manpower Commissioner McNutt's intricate plans, including shifts of men from non-deferrable industry to war work is to build the machinery so that when the act is passed it can be put into effect at once.

the act is passed it can be put into effect at once.

Now that the farm labor problem has been taken off McNutt's doorstep, and with the definite "back-to-the-farm" trend, congress may ease up on McNutt and give him the money he needs to build his prenational service machinery.

of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not set as Asture intended—fall to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of disziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffines under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scantly or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doca's Pills. Doca's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

The Marlinton Journal,

FOREWORD

This story was told me largely in the officers' quarters of the Motor Torpedo Boat station at Melville, Rhode Island, by four young officers of MTB Squadron 3, who were all that was left of the squadron which proudly saided for the Philippines last summer. A fifth efficer, Lieutenant Henry J. Brantingham, has since arrived from Australia.

These men had been singled out from the multilitude for return to America because General MacArthur believed that the MTB's had proved their worth in warfare, and hoped that these officers could bring back to America their actual battle experience, by which trainees sould benefit.

Their Squadron Commander, Lieuten-battle experience, by which trainess could benefit.

Their Squadron Commander, Lieutenant John Bulkeley (now Lieutenant-Commander) of course needs no introduction, as he is aiready a national hero for his part in bringing MacArthur out of Bataan. But because the navy was then keeping him so busy fulfilling his obligations as a national hero, Bulkeley had to delegate to Lieutenant Robert Bolling Kelly a major part of the task of rounding out the narrative. I think the reader will agree that the choice was wise, for Lieutenant Kelly, in addition to being a brave and competent naval officer, has a sense of narrative and a keen eye for significant defail, two attributes which were of great value to this book. Ensigns Anthony Akers and George E. Cox Jr., also contributed when I had

As a result, I found when I had finished that I had not just the adventure story of a single squadron, but in the background the whole tragic panorama of the Philippine campaign—America's little Dunkirk.

We are a democracy, running a war. If our mistakes are concealed from us, they can never be corrected. Facts are frequently and properly withheld in a war, because the enemy would take advantage of our weaknesses if he knew them. But this story now can safely be told because the sad chapter is ended. The Japanese know just how inadequate our equipment was, because they destroyed or captured practically all of it.

stroyed or captured practically all of it.

I have been wandering in and out of wars since 1939, and many times before have I seen the sad young men come out of battle—come with the whistle of fying steel and the rumble of falling walls still in their ears, come out to the fat, well fed cities behind the lines, where the complacent citizens always choose from the newsstands those papers where had the lines of the strong that the same part of th whose headlines proclaim every skirmish as a magnificent victory.

And through those plump cities the sayoung men back from battle wander a strangers in a strange land, talking grim language of realism which the sinug citizenry doean't understand, trying to tell of a tragedy which few enjoy hearing.

These four sad young men differ from those I have talked to in Europe only in that they are Americans, and the trag-edy they bear witness to is our own failure, and the smugness they struggle against is our own complacency.

CHAPTER I

"You don't understand," said the young naval officer, "we were expendable." He was very earnest as he lolled on the bunk in the officers' quarters of the torpedo station at Newport, along with the other three officers who had also just got out of the Philippings. the Philippines.

I admitted I didn't understand.

"Well, it's like this. Suppose you're a sergeant machine-gunner, and your army is retreating and the enemy advancing. The captain takes you to a machine gun covering the road. 'You're to stay here and hold this position,' he tells you. 'For how long?' you ask. 'Never mind,' he answers, 'just hold it.' Then you know you're expendable. In a war, anything can be expendable—money or gasoline or equipment or most usually men. They are expending you and that machine gun to get time. They don't expect to see elther one sgain. They expect you to stay there and spray that road with steel until you're killed or captured, holding up the enemy for a few minutes or even a precious quarter of an hour. "Well, it's like this. Suppose utes or even a precious quarter of

"You know the situation-that "You know the situation—that those few minutes gained are worth the life of a man to your army. So you don't mind it until you come back here where people waste hours and days and sometimes weeks, when you've seen your friends give their lives to save minutes."

"Look, never mind about that," said Lieutenant John Bulkeley, the senior officer, "People don't like to hear about that. I've learned that in the week I've been back. Let's start at the beginning. And first a word about us.

up Manila Bay in the early fall.

"On my way back here last week, I had a few hours in Honolulu, and the boys were still talking about how they'd been surprised on December 7. I don't know why they should have been, because they got the same warning we did in Manila. That war was maybe days, perhaps even only hours, away. The only thing that surprised us was that it was Pearl Harbor that got the first was Pearl Harbor that got the first attack, not us.

"We'd been following the negotia-"We'd been following the negotiations. We knew we needed sixty

"But now for a little geography.
Here's Manila Bay—a big beautiful harbor twenty miles across. At the far end is the city of Manila and the far end is the city of Manila and the state of pasty and then its skipper delivered a piece of pasty and the state of t harbor twenty miles across. At the far end is the city of Manila, and if you were suddenly put down there, you'd think you were in Los Angeles, until you noticed the faces of the people. At the mouth of Manila Bay, the upper lip is Bataan Peninsula and the lower one is Batangas, with the Rock—Corregidor Island—a hard little pill between the two lins. And the Rock—Corregior island—a nard little pill between the two lips. And we are stationed at Cavite, the big American naval base on the lower side of the bay, about halfway be-tween Manila and the harbor's mouth.

"We're under orders of Admiral Hart, who is Commander in Chief of the Far Eastern fleet, based there. Only how long will we stay? Because as war drew close, rumors began to fly. If it came soon, we might be getting out because we didn't have air superiority. The Japa could run down from Formosa and hag our little Asiatic fleet, so maybe we'd be pulling out for the southern laiends, waiting for sireraft carriers which would bring fighters to protect us.

The night of December 8 we were The night of December 8 we were all asteep in the officers' quarters of Cavite," Bulkeley went on, "when may beisphose rang about three in the coording and I first learned the Japa had struck at Pearl Harbor," When they about me, I didn't believe it, told Smalgn Abora, He's a tall, dark allent Teach, "I was said, dark allent Teach," I had said, 'It's a hell of a time to declare war,' and rolled over."

"The message said I was to come on down to the Commandantia," continued Bulkeley. "It's an old thick-walled Spanish building, and when I got there, Admiral Rockwell, who was in command at Cavite, and Captain Ray, his chief of staff, were already dressed. Dawn was just beginning to break over Manila Bay, and the Admiral was watching the sky. "They ought to be here any minute," he said. And then he told me to prepare my six boats for war stations. They were going to send us over to Bataan at the naval base in Mariveles Harbor, just opposite Corregidor."

"I was prepared for the war," said Kelly, the squadron's second in command, a tall blond lieutenant with quick blue eyes, "I'd heard about the secret operation orders what

Kelly, the squadron's second in command, a tail blond lieutenant with quick blue eyes. "I'd heard about the secret operation orders—what the fleet would do under any of three eventualities, so the night before I'd gone over to the Army and Navy Club at Manila and put aboard the thickest charcoal-broiled filet mignon I could buy there, plus French fries and a big tomato with Roquefort dressing, finishing off with brandy and a cigar. I figured I'd at least have them to remember. "We spent that first day fully

"We spent that first day fully manned, anticipating a bombing at-tack. Five of the boats were dis-persed along the shore about a hun-dred yards apart—the sixth was padred yards apart—the sixth was pa-trolling. All day we loaded them with food—cans of corned beef, Vi-enna sausage, vegetables, and canned potatoes—don't laugh at that, it's better than rice—canned fruit, fruit, coffee.

"I saw the first planes about noon flying out over the bay. At first I thought they were ours, but after about a minute our shore batteries opened up. They were coming over at 20,000 and of course immediately we shoved all our boats off and out into the bay. But we heard noth-ing drop. It was probably just a reconnaissance raid—feeling us out. "Of course there were all kinds of rumors — that Zamboanga and Davao, down in the southern archipelago, had been taken. Also that our navy patrol planes had gone up to Northern Luzon to intercept Jap transports gathering off Aparri there. We even heard our aircraft tenders had been surprised and tak-en, but that one proved false. Yet that morning, nothing was sure.

"About three o'clock orders came from Squadron Commander Bulkeley to send three boats, under my command, over to Mariveles on Bacommand, over to Mariveles on Bataan and report to the submarine tender there for food, water, and torpedoes, and to remain on the ready—available to go out and attack anything he ordered us to. By five o'clock we cast off. We had some passengers to deliver at Corregidor, so it was eight and plenty dark before we were outside the mine fields, feeling our way into Mariveles. We thought we knew those mine fields, but in pitch-darkness, with the mine-field lights turned off and of course no lights on our boats now, it was something on our boats now, it was something on our boats how else again.

"At this point the army took over. They heard the roar of our motors and thought it was Jap planes. Searchlights began winking on all over Bataan, feeling up into the sky over Bataan, feeling up into the sky over Bataan, feeling up into the sky over Bataan, reeing up into the say for planes—our motors were echoing against the mountains on Bataan, so they couldn't tell where the noise was coming from. Every artillery post for twenty-six kilometers around went on the alert, and for a few went on the alert, and for a few minutes it was a question whether we were going to be blown to hell by a mine or by one of our own be back.

"So then the fun began. There "So then the fun began. There we were—no base, rations for only ten days, and a big problem in how we were to live ourselves and what in hell we would do with the boats when the planes came over. In addition to which, we were almost flat out of gas, and what would we do for fuel to fight this war?

"Pretty soon we began finding some of the answers. For instance just around the coast from Mariveles in Sisionan Cove was a native village—practically abandoned ex-

CHRIST'S CHARGE TO PETER

LESSON TEXT—John 21:15-34, GOLDEN TEXT—Greater love hath no san than this, that a man lay down his fe for his friends.—John 15:13.

Breakfast for a hungry fisherman—that is what our loving and thoughtful Lord had provided on the shore of Galilee. He wanted to talk to Peter, but He knew this was needful first. There are some folk who think that following Christ is a doleful matter, devoid of every pleasure. Jesus never taught any such thing. He attended weddings and dinners even in the homes of those despised by men. But remember that He always did it for their spiritual good, not merely for His own enjoyment; and that He always brought the gathering up to His own spiritual level, rather than stooping to any worldly or wicked standards. or wicked standards.

Here we find Him with a glowing fire upon which fish is broiling, and with bread ready for these hungry men. It was just like Him thus to meet in most delightful and satisfying fellowship those who serve Him. Draw up to the fire, Christian friends who are standing afar off. You may be so timid that, like the disciples, you will not dare to call disciples, you will not dare to call Him by name (v. 12), but if you will come, you will find that the precious fellowship will soon warm your heart.
With the meal over, Christ turned to Peter and in their conversation we find the latter required to

I. Face Responsibility (vv. 15-17). With kindly persistence our Lord brought Peter face to face with his brought Peter face to face with his responsibility of full-hearted devotion to Him. Before service can be rendered there must be a right relationship to the Lord.

Three times Peter was asked to declare his love for Christ. Such a public confession was quite in place, before the man who had thrice denied his Lord was restored to a place of leadership. The words "more than these" (v. 15) indicate that nied his Lord was restored to a place of leadership. The words "more than these" (v. 15) indicate that Jesus was asking of him a high measure of devotion. It is no more than He has a right to expect of us. The conversation after breakfast that morning was a very profitable one. One is reminded, by contrast, that few of our mealtime discussions are very useful. Many (perhaps are very useful. Many (perhaps most) after-dinner speeches and conversations yield little profit. Here is an occasion when such was not the case. One wonders whether we would not be wise to take the sug-gestion and turn our thoughts and those of our dinner guests to spiritu-al things. Surely it should be so among Christian friends and in a Christian home.

II, Feeding Christ's Flock (vv.

We review the same verses to point out that an expression of love to Christ means nothing except as it manifests itself in service. Like Peter, we are to be diligent about feeding His flock, whether they be the young and inexperienced lambs, on the matter of the fold.

or the mature sheep of the fold.

We tend to specialize. Even in soul-winning some give themselves to child evangelism while others reach only adults, and would hardly think of dealing with a child. True it is that we have represented. it is that we have varying gifts, and one does one type of work better than another. But let us avoid over-specialization. Every needy soul is a challenge to us as we present the gospel.

The word "feed" should be stressed. Here again the church has frequently failed. Men and women are won to a decision for Christ, and are won to a decision for Christ, and then forgotten. Sheep must be fed if they are to grow. A teaching ministry must accompany the evan-gelistic effort. They belong together, and to neglect either is to fail, at least, in that measure.

III. Follow Him to the End (vv. 18-24)

Endlessly ingenious are the devices of Satan. He who had sifted Peter like wheat (Luke 22:31) and had rejoiced in the weakness of his denial of Christ, now saw him stepping out into victorious living. He heard the prophecy of the martyr death of Peter. So he put into his heart a question, Why should he suffer? What about John? What was the Lord going to do for him?

When our enemy cannot trip us up with temptation to personal sin, he resorts to the device of jealousy. Many promising Christian workers become useless because they Make Red Points Work!

Making red points fit your menus and still give you plenty of valuable proteins and fats on which to do a man - sized day's work is like working out a jig-saw puzzle. But you remember how they all can come out if you try hard enough? The answer is in budgeting your points before you spend them, getting meats with low point value, and extending flavor of meat as much as possible.

First of all, let's realize that meat is a high quality protein, and that the body needs it for repairing and building tissue—which is a full-time job. We designate proteins as com-plete and incomplete, the ones which are complete do a complete job of body building and repairing. Com-plete proteins are meat, cheese, fish, poultry, eggs and milk.

Incomplete proteins are those which can do just part of the job, and in this class we have breads, and in this class we have breads, cereals, beans, peas and nuts. Of course we can use these foods alternately or in combination with meat, when we cannot get enough meat to fill our requirements. But, always, please bear the difference in mind. in mind.

Special Surveys Decrease Cross Hauling: Developments Abroad May Force Unexpected Shifting of Troops.

By BAUKHAGE

WNU Service, Union Trust Building | Washington, D. C.

Recently I had to make seven conecutive week-end trips between Vashington and New York-I left Washington and New York—I left Washington after a late Friday broadcast and had to return Monday for one at noon. Not once was I able to get reservations for the re-turn trip until at the last minute when some unused space was turned

If I groused a little too loudly over this, it may have been because I didn't know then what I learned officially only the other day; namely, that "if the war department insisted in having all the Pullman cars of the country would be carrying troops."

In other words, if Johnny Dough.

In other words, if Johnny Dough-boy didn't step aside occasionally, we'd all use coaches or walk.

Compromise

The present arrangement is said The present arrangement is said to be a compromise in recognition of essential civilian needs. At present, a million and three-quarter soldiers are being moved a month—that is 50,000 a day—in America's trains in official troop movements. This does not include the many men on leave.

on leave.

There are, of course, movements of whole divisions with full equipment but these are the exceptions. As you have probably noticed if you travel very much, there are usually a few cars containing troops attached to your passenger train. This is the way most of the troops are transported—in small groups of 250 or less. However, that is a considerable addition to the regular passenger traffic. passenger traffic.

It's said a soldier eats twice as much as he did in civilian life and that is one reason why food has to be rationed to civilians. But he travels a lot more in proportion to his normal civilian peregrinations. travels a lot more in proportion to his normal civilian peregrinations. Many a man saw his first big city when he reached London or Cairo or New Delhi. I know a pilot who dropped in at the airport here recently and had several hours waitover. When he was asked why he didn't cross the bridge and look didn't cross the bridge and look over. When he was asked why he didn't cross the bridge and look the capital over, he said he'd never been in a big city and didn't want to get lost. The next thing heard from this particular was that he was in Calcutta in Calcutta.

Average Number

In the last war, the average num ber of moves made by a soldier were three. Here is a list of typical moves he makes in this war, drawn up by the Office of War Information:

- 1. To the induction center
- 2. To reception center
- 3. To replacement training cen-
- 4. To his particular branch of service
- 5. To big maneuvers 6. Return
- 7. To special training areas 8. To port of embarkation

Special studies are made to cut down unnecessary cross-hauling but sudden developments abroad may force soldiers who are located near one port to be shifted to another far away. Or a special need for particularized training may arise and that may force men to be doubled back to desert or mountain for the special results.

as many as 300,000 men within a few weeks, equipment and all. Naturally, that disrupted a large part of passenger traffic for several weeks

Unessential Travel

Efforts are being made to cut down extra passenger travel by discoursging conventions, trade shows, big sports contests and other gatherings. One exception has been made, and that is the lecturer. Even the President saw fit to come out with a statement encouraging the er. Thomas represented many ple who do considerable ple who do considerable public speaking. I know how difficult it is. There have been rumors of late that transportation was snagged; that because of the U-boats, sup-plies were piling up on the docks and loaded freight cars were jam-ming the yards and causing con-gestion. But the Office of War Ingestion. But the Office of war in-formation says that latest advices indicate that congestion is being lessened. In fact, the official word is: "The battle of transportation . . . at a crisis at Pearl Harbor time . . . is now being won."

Nearing Limit

I hope that this statement isn't over-optimistic. As a matter of fact, the reservation is noted that "the victories are not necessarily permanent. Our transportation equipment, with few exceptions, is being used close to its limits"—and there remain two situations which are not satisfactory, one is movement of all satisfactory, one is movement of oil and the other is the problem of getting the war workers to and from work.

The latter difficulty is responsible, according to some investigators, for much of the recently decried absenteeism.

To get an idea of what the traffic has to bear in a city where war in-dustries are concentrated, there has been an increase of use of the Debeen an increase of use of the Detroit street railway systems of 76.9 per cent. The Baltimore transit line is up 90 per cent and the Washington, 131 per cent. I know what these figures mean as does anyone who has to make his way to and from work in the capital. I have also seen that fabulous city of San Diego, once a pleasant, sleepy town which seemed to move lazily with the pelicans that flew over the bay or the whispering palms. The pelicans have been replaced by planes and it's a 24-hour town, with a 336 per cent increase in the use of its busses and trolley cars. and trolley cars.

ing Nebraska. He told me he lived in New York.

From the car window, we could see the western Nebraska ranch homes. "People who live in such places must be only half human to endure such a life," he said. "For the sake of the nation, and especially in wartime, it is a good thing we have places like New York to depend upon."

"The man who lives in that house over there," I replied, as I pointed to a not-too-pretentious ranch house, "is one of the kings of America. He rules over a few hundred or a few thousand acres. People of New York and other cities are but his subjects. Without him and his kind your cities would not exist. He supplies the foundation upon which not only the cities, but the nation is built. He thinks more intelligently than do 75 per cent of the people of the cities. He represents the culture of America. He supplies the food, that first essential of both peace and the cities. He represents the culture of America. He supplies the food, that first essential of both peace and war. He is intensely patriotic. He works whatever number of hours are required to do the job in order that you, and your kind, may live. He, and his kind—people of the farms and ranches and those of the rural cities and towns through which we are passing, constitute the most valuable 50 per cent of the population of our nation. They, not the people of the cities, represent the real humans of America. People of the cities, that rancher's subjects, would do well to emulate his many virtues and his patriotism."

Of course I did not convince the ADVANTAGES OF FARM IN 'RATIONED DAYS' IN MANY CITIES you go to the market with the hope of getting something for the family table. It something for the family table. It is not a question of selections—it is a case of accepting, with thanks, whatever you can get. In limited quantities, you can find canned fruits and vegetables—abouf half the quantity the family had in pre-rationing days. In the line of fresh vegetables, you may find one or two varieties, but more often there is none. In meats, you may get a sirloin steak at one time and nothing better than neck bones another, but frequently neck bones another, but frequently it will be none of any kind. You do not ask for beef or lamb or veal or pork. You ask only for meat, and are pleased at your good fortune if you get any.

How different on the farm in these war days. Mother canned the fruits and vegetables for the family. In the cellar are rows of peas, tomatoes, corn and all the other good things produced in the garden. In the bins are potatoes and apples, and on the fruit shelves are peaches, cherries, plums, berries and other fruits, with jar after jar of mother's preserves and fellies. In the barnyard there is always a fat chicken for the family dinner. There is a hog from which can come roast pork, chops, spareribs, bacon and hams, How different on the farm in these

In winter it is sometimes extreme-In winter it is sometimes extremely difficult to meet that nutrition requirement because of the scarcity of vegetables and fruits and their consequent high prices. Now, though prices are higher than last year at this time, they are abundant, and most of us can afford to spend the extra money required to but them. extra money required to buy them.

Perhaps, you have a garden this year. You're probably planning to put up most of the produce, but you always have some crops available for immediate consumption such as lettuce, tender green shoots of on-ions, etc. In some parts of the coun-try it's a bit early for some of these to make their appearance, but when they do, up and at them!

Homemakers are fortunately be-coming more and more conscious of the importance of fruits and vege-tables in the diet, and the more so tables in the diet, and the more so they become, the more healthy will become each generation of Ameri-cans. Even those of you who have been deficient in these foods during been deficient in these foods during the growing years will get much benefit from including these foods in your diet. PETER AND JOHN LEADERS IN THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT-Acts 2,37-41, 2:1-8; 4:12; Boll. GOLDEN TEXT—Now when they can the boldmens of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marveled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Josep.—Acts $113.

Does the Church have a message for our day? Sometimes one wonders a bit, but a little thought indicates that if it does not, it is not because Christianity has failed, but because Christian people have failed to declare the eternal and powerful truth of God. The primary responsibility for any such failure must rest upon the leaders of the Church. It is instructive to are the musitives.

It is instructive to see the qualities which made the leaders of the early Church effective for the Lord. In our lesson we find Peter and John doing three things.

Declaring God's Word (Acts 2:

Peter had just finished the first sermon preached in the Church, which was delivered at Pentecost, The declaration of God's truth in the power of the Holy Spirit brought conviction of sin. It always does, although the outward indication of its working may not be as marked its working may not be as marked as it was on that day. Three thou-sand souls were under conviction and asking what to do to be saved.

What an opportunity for the preacher and his fellow worker, John. How did they meet it? By faithfully declaring the need of repentance and faith, and then of fellowship with others in the Church.

One mark of a real leader for God will always be that he preaches and teaches the message of God without adulteration, without modification, and with plainness and simplicity.

The kind of leadership which is often magnified in the Church today and which is largely made up of personal magnetism, "pep" and fast talk, is not real leadership at all. Test your leaders by their faithful and intelligent declaration of God's

II. Conveying God's Power (Acts

"Channels only"—that is the func-tion of the worker for Christ, the leader in His Church. As Mary Maxwell well put it:

Channels only, blessed Master, But with all Thy wondrous power Flowing through us, Thou canst use us Every day and every hour.

Silver and gold was a scarce com-modity with Peter and John, as it has been with many, yes most, of God's servants through the centu-ries. But they did have the blessed privilege of being channels through which the healing, cleansing, re-deeming power of God could flow— and that was infinitely better.

The lame man had long since given up hope of anything better than the few coins he could beg at the temple gate. He was like many in our hard and practical age who see only the values that money can give, and thus miss the real blessing of God.

God has for men today, as He had for this beggar, that which is far better than gold—deliverance from sin and liberation from the limitations of spirit which make them content with the paltry alms of men.

Peter and John were ready to be used of God because they were men who were not too busy to pray (v. 1). Knowing the compassion of God they sought out the one in need, and by faith put the unlimited power of God to work on his behalf.

God healed this man's body, but what is more important, He healed his spirit (v. 8). We need that kind of healing for the weak-kneed, lameankled, spirit-darkened individuals communities in our communities and our churches. We will have it only as our leaders are men and women who are cleansed-ready to be chan-nels for the conveying of God's power to a needy world.

III. Doing God's Will (Acts 4:13,

The way of life of God's leaders is not an easy one, but it is a simple one. They do God's will—nothing less, nothing more, and nothing else. What could be more delightful?

Peter and John had spoken the truth and declared salvation to be only in the name of Jesus (v. 12). Certain easy talkers within the Church who tell us that we must not be a second to be a second by broad around he see be narrow but broad enough to see salvation in all religions, had better read that verse again.

Because they had preached Christ, and for no other reason, they were imprisoned, then released on condition that they would not mention Him again. What a splendid op-Him again. What a splendid op-portunity for a smooth and comfort-able compremise! They could preach but just leave out Christ. Did they do it? Not (vv. 18, 20).

Obedience to God was paramount with there, and it must be with every generally Christian leader in the Church. Nothing clas will do, mor will it have the blessing and ap-proval of God.
